Population up 17% here in two years

Buffalo Grove's official population has jumped more than 17 per cent in the last two years to a total of 10,300, according to results of a special census.

The official count, however, is somewhat short of earlier predictions that the village had grown to more than 10,000 since a similar special census in 1972.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the increase means that Buffalo Grove will be paid $25,000 extra in state income taxes and $25,000 in additional motor fuel tax funds. Larson was uncertain when the funds will be received, but said they may be available in late February or early March.

THE CENSUS figures included a breakdown showing 14,106 residents living in the Cook County section and 4,284 in Lake County Buffalo Grove.

Statistics also show 9,311 residents are male and 9,179 female. In addition, 10,149 residents are under age 21 while only 8,249 are older than 21. Only 200 persons in Buffalo Grove are between 70 and 85.

Median age of village residents is 25.

Before the 1972 census, a headcount taken in 1970 turned up 11,709 village residents. A 1960 census showed the population to be 7,809, while population counts in 1963 totaled 3,429 and 1,402 residents in 1960.

LARSON ESTIMATED that the village population will continue to grow and may reach 25,000 within the next few years depending largely on the amount of building activity.

"We could experience growth of as much as 6,000 to 7,000 in one year," Larson said, "If the building market changes." Buffalo Grove's population could have topped the 20,000 mark had it not been for the building industry slowdown caused by economic conditions, he added.

If the building market continues at a slow pace the 25,000 figure may not be reached until 1980, he said.

Once the 25,000 level is reached the village will be eligible for home-rule status under Illinois law. Home rule municipalities have increased bonding and local governmental powers.

IN COMMENTING on the increase, Larson said, "It generally illustrates the village is in a unique position. It's no longer classified as a small community and it's reached the point where we should be expanding in some specialized areas."

He mentioned police and public works services as areas that will have to be expanded to keep pace with increasing population levels.

Group to push for speed-limit cut

The speed limit was lowered by 5 m.p.h. last summer.

Speed limits are set by the state according to the speed that most drivers already travel. The number of driveways and the amount of pedestrian traffic also are considered.

Mrs. Williams said 1973 traffic statistics show that Wheeling had three traffic fatalities and all were on McHenry Road. "My God, how many people have to be killed before they do something?" she said.

She said her group plans to meet with village officials later this month to discuss possible ways of persuading the state to further reduce the speed limit. She said her group is attempting to obtain accident statistics from the village to show that a lower speed limit is justified.

IN THE MEANTIME, Mrs. Williams said her group will continue to work to get motorists to reduce their speed voluntarily. The group hopes the voluntary speed reductions will show up on future state traffic surveys.

"Since CORPSE was started, it's amazing how many people have slowed down on that crazy road," she said. "People aren't whizzing up and down there like they used to."

As a result of past traffic surveys, Fonda said the state plans to install traffic signals at two locations along McHenry Road this year. The first signal will be placed at Arlington Heights Road and the second at Elmhurst Road.

Board reviews town hall plans

The Arlington Heights Village Board will review plans tonight for a new town hall for Wheeling Township at 1020 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Township officials are rezoning the village to the site from single family to office use. The rezoning is opposed by several homeowners who live near the proposed site just north of Maude Avenue and by Village Planner Joe Kester.

Kester says the rezoning conflicts with the village's Arlington Heights Road study which recommended that office zoning not be extended any further south along north Arlington Heights Road.

On Dec. 11, the Arlington Heights Plan Commission voted 4-3 to recommend approval of the rezoning.

Township officials say they need the new building in order to have more room for an expanded program of social services, including elderly assistance.

Tonight's village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Suburbs wary of Pikarsky as RTA chief

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

Pikarsky plans to meet this skepticism with a concentrated effort to improve mass transportation in the suburbs, he said two hours after his appointment was approved Friday.

The RTA board approved Pikarsky's nomination by a 6-to-2 vote when two suburban board members who earlier opposed him switched their votes. A salary has not been established, but it is expected to be $80,000 to $100,000 a year.

John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president who reluctantly backed the RTA nomination in March, said of the appointment, "I think it's absolutely imperative that they get off the dime and move ahead. I don't believe Pikarsky is an acceptable chairman in large part because of his very close association with Mayor Daley."

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong. If he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates objects more to the

Pikarsky pledges suburbs to get equal consideration

New RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky is tackling his biggest obstacle — the suburbs — with promises of equal consideration with Chicago and development of a suburban service division in the RTA structure.

"While the City of Chicago is the largest governmental subdivision of this area, the entire suburban area is equally important in the terms of the need to maintain, improve and expand public transportation as a necessary public service," he said.

"All capabilities of the RTA, including funding and revenues, must be utilized in accordance with this cardinal principal of treating the Chicago area as a whole, with full realization that the entire area is more important than any single part.

"We cannot permit any portion of the area to be favored at the expense of the others. We could not, for instance, adopt policies that would penalize suburban service to the benefit of transit service in Chicago," he said.

Pikarsky said one of his first tasks

may be to equalize fares on suburban bus and commuter railroad systems.

To ensure efficient bus service in the suburban areas, he said, he will establish the suburban service unit and propose that the director of the division be selected by the suburban members of the RTA board.

will be fulfilled," he said.

The committee, which opposed the RTA referendum, had said the CTA would get control of the RTA and that 78 per cent of the money would go to the CTA, although only 31 per cent of the income would come from Chicago residents.

A new amendment to the RTA law requires money raised by RTA taxes in a county to be spent in that county, but Skinner says that guarantee is insignificant. "All the guarantees are that the CTA will make out like a bandit," he said.

Temporary RTA chairman Joseph Tector would not comment at length on why suburban board members D. Daniel Beldino and Richard Newland swung to Pikarsky, but he said, "The voting is over. Government runs by the rule of the majority and I'm prepared to move on."

Suburban digest*Football stadium reaction favorable

Civic and community leaders generally have reacted favorably to news that Madison Square Garden Corp. may plan a new football stadium for the Chicago Bears at Arlington Park Race Track. "I would be very interested in anything they have to say about it," said Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour of Arlington Heights. Richard Goodke, president Westgate Civic Assn. which represents 1,000 Arlington Heights homeowners who live near the track, said the stadium would probably be more acceptable than a 5,000-unit high-rise housing development planned for the property.

18,390 in Buffalo Grove

Buffalo Grove's official population has jumped more than 17 per cent in the last two years to a total of 18,390, according to results of a special census. The official count, however, is somewhat short of earlier predictions that the village had grown to more than 19,000 since a similar special census in 1972. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the increase means that Buffalo Grove will receive an additional $25,000 in state income tax rebates and $35,000 more in motor fuel taxes.

2 teens linked to 13 burglaries

Two teen-agers arrested by Mount Prospect police are believed responsible for at least 13 burglaries in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights. The pair, a boy and a girl both 14 years old, were arrested Friday afternoon in a restaurant at Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue after two suspects matching their descriptions were seen leaving a nearby burglarized home. Three watches and a collector's coin were found on the boy when he was arrested, police said.

'Earthquake' has repercussions

Mount Prospect officials are looking into possible side effects of the movie "Earthquake" on the Randhurst Cinema. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley ordered an investigation Friday following reports that a Chicago theater was instructed to lower the volume of "Sensurround," a special effect in the movie, to avert damage to the structure of the theater. "Sensurround" uses reverberating sound to create an earthquake atmosphere. Roy Nagle, manager of the Randhurst Cinema, said any investigation is a bit late because the movie is starting its eighth week in the theater. And, he said: "I wouldn't want to see the movie with a turned-down sound after paying for all that equipment."

2 join race for trustee

Two more candidates have joined the race for Mount Prospect village trustee — incumbent George B. Anderson and Theodore Wattenberg, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education. Wattenberg will run as an independent, while Anderson will join the United Citizens Party ticket along with Trustees Marie L. Taylor and O. T. Gustus and political newcomers Carolyn H. Krause and Edward G. Wells. Maverick Trustee Richard N. Hendricks will seek reelection as an independent. Five village board seats are up for election in April.

Ice-skating fees going up

The Rolling Meadows Park District has increased admission and ice-rental fees at the district's indoor ice rink while reducing public skating hours in order to meet rising costs. Public skating has steadily decreased since the rink opened and has generated about $1,000 less revenue than last year. The difference is being made up by rentals to groups and hockey teams. "The rink is making money. The programs are bringing in more than last year," said Park Supt. Stephen Person.

Fight for lower speeds continues

A citizens group in Wheeling will keep up its campaign for lower speed limits on Old McHenry Road despite continued resistance from the state highway officials. Said Karen Williams, chairwoman of Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposition, "It's amazing how many people have slowed down on Slaughter Elimination (CORPSE). "Since CORPSE was that crazy road, People aren't whizzing up and down there like they used to."

C&NW rate-hike request draws heavy opposition

by STEVE FORSYTH

A Chicago & North Western Ry. request for another 7 per cent commuter fare hike is drawing heavy opposition for the first time in years as two villages and a state representative are lining up against it.

Illinois Commerce Commission public hearings on fare hikes normally take a few hours, but opponents have already stretched proceedings to a third session this time.

The cause of the rate hike opposition is mixed, but the ICC is hearing prolonged bickering instead of the usual minor comments. Six previous increases have gone virtually unopposed, and James Macdonald, C&NW public relations director, said this is the first time a municipality has filed objections.

The railroad asked for the hike to be effective Jan. 1, but ICC deliberations likely will carry it far past that point. Recent hike requests have been held as long as 11 months.

Arlington Heights Atty. Jack Siegel and an attorney for the village of West Chicago have probed the possibility of cutting costs or the railroad instead of raising fares, and have cross-examined railroad officials for hours.

State Rep. Calvin Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, is opposing increases on the C&NW and the Milwaukee Road on grounds that no hikes should be allowed until the Regional Transportation Authority establishes grants. He says increases thwart the RTA legislation that proposed stabilization of fares — a policy the railroads promoted in pushing for passage of the RTA referendum last March.

Charging that the railroads could reap huge profits with RTA contracts for service, Skinner said taxpayers served by the C&NW could lose twice. If the railroad raises fares and doesn't lose money, it cannot seek subsidies. Therefore, subsidy money will go to other commuter railroads that are operating at losses.

A suburban commuter on a C&NW line would pay higher fares for his service, and his RTA tax money would subsidize the other railroads he doesn't use, Skinner said. "For them (C&NW) to get money, they have to lose money," he said.

Skinner, a leader in the KNow RTA Committee that fought to defeat the RTA referendum, also is seeking from the ICC a definition of "reasonable rate of return."

At rate hike hearings for the Milwaukee Road and the C&NW, Skinner said he learned that the Milwaukee's definition is 10 per cent. The C&NW sets it at 20-25 per cent, Skinner said.

Under the old Illinois rate laws, the C&NW is permitted a "reasonable return" of 4.07 per cent, Skinner said, and 8 per cent is a standard utility return. The 8 per cent could be applied if railroads are considered a regulated utility, Skinner said.

He charges that the railroads could milk the RTA treasury dry by seeking 20 per cent profits in contracts for service. That would leave nothing for new or improved service elsewhere in the suburbs, Skinner says.

The combined opposition to the recent hike is an unusual demonstration. Normally, one or two riders, if anyone, attend to complain about such things as the condition of station platforms or enforcement of smoking rules in the commuter cars.

The latest hearing has stretched into three sessions, primarily because of Siegel's questioning. A Nov. 14 hearing date was continued to Dec. 30, and the third session will begin at 10 a.m. Jan. 13. It could go even longer, one observer said.

"In view of the great relationship we've had with the Village of Arlington Heights, I can't see why they oppose the increase. There are no commuters coming in here, to complain," Macdonald said.

Siegel says he represents the village commuters, but spot checks at the stations indicate the riders are not outraged by the proposed 7 per cent increase. Siegel has suggested that the railroad instead drop some small stations and cut back on station personnel — cut costs wherever possible. The railroad says such moves would only decrease ridership.

A $2.3 million profit projected for 1974 came as a surprise, but Macdonald insists that figure has dwindled to $1.3 million because of increased fuel costs not foreseen in the budget. "We're sure December is going to be in the red," he said.

Macdonald also said the effect of the protests is merely to delay the rate hike. "It costs us $150,000 a month."

Rocky heads 'blue ribbon' unit to probe CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford named Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller Sunday to head an eight-member commission investigating charges of illegal domestic spying by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Other members Ford picked to serve on the generally-conservative panel included Ronald Reagan, a former Republican governor of California, and two men who served in the Democratic cabinets of John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Ford's announcement of the commission membership came the day after he decided the panel should be formed to investigate allegations the CIA spied illegally on thousands of Americans within the United States. Such domestic spying would violate the CIA's 1947 charter.

The "blue ribbon" commission was ordered to deliver its report to Ford by April 4. The White House said the report would be turned over to Congress, which is planning its own CIA investigation, and eventually would be made public.

A parallel investigation of the charges by the FBI — traditionally the CIA's arch rival — already is under way, the White House said late Saturday.

Those chosen to serve on the commission with Rockefeller and Reagan included:

- C. Douglas Dillon, Secretary of the Treasury from 1960-65 and now head of a major financial investment firm.

- John T. Connor, Secretary of Commerce from 1963-67 and now chairman of the Allied Chemical Corporation.

- Erwin N. Griswold, U.S. Solicitor General from 1967-72 and now a private lawyer.

- Joseph Lane Kirkland, secretary treasurer of the AFL-CIO since 1969.

- Retired Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who was chairman of the joint chiefs of staff from 1960-63.

- Edgar F. Shannon, who stepped down last year after 15 years as president of the University of Virginia.

Lemnitzer told UPI in a telephone interview that no date had been set for the commission's first meeting.

In announcing the commission's creation, Ford said he wanted it to determine whether the CIA had "exceeded its statutory authority" and decide whether additional "safeguards" are necessary to maintain national security without compromising traditional "democratic institutions and fundamental freedoms."

The President's action was triggered by allegations in news reports and from members of Congress that the CIA carried out burglaries and electronic surveillance during the 1960s and early 1970s and that the agency spied on or kept dossiers on as many as 10,000 Americans, particularly activists opposed to the Vietnam War.

Ford directed the commission to submit any evidence of illegal activity to the attorney general.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Saturday that no government officials would serve on the commission.

Nessen said Sunday he meant his earlier statement to refer only to members of Congress, the judiciary or lesser officials of the executive branch.

A number of congressmen have called for investigations of the CIA, including one proposal for a Watergate-type special prosecutor to examine the agency's operations and take any necessary legal action. Ford has said he would welcome independent congressional investigations.

The makeup of the commission named by Ford was broad, apparently in an effort to draw from a variety of political and economic interests and give the panel high credibility for its sensitive task.

Ford's choice of Rockefeller to head the commission was the first specific assignment given to the new Vice President, who was sworn into office Dec. 19.

On Saturday, before he announced his decision to set up the citizens panel for a CIA investigation, Ford discussed the matter at length with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was understood to have recommended creation of such a commission.

Ford also met with former CIA director Richard M. Helms, who was head of the agency from 1965 until late 1972 — the period during which many of the alleged activities were said to have occurred.

45 San Juan tourists robbed

Two armed men held up 45 tourists in a San Juan, P.R. bus late Saturday as the group was returning to a cruise ship after attending a nightclub show, police said Sunday. Police said they had no details of the crime. But witnesses said the holdup men made off with money and jewelry taken from passengers on the bus. The tourists, who had flown to the island from Chicago and New York earlier in the day to board the Italian cruise ship Stella Solaris, were uninjured.

Venezuela blasts foreign trade bill

Venezuelan sources said Sunday the foreign trade bill President Ford signed last week has sent relations between Caracas and Washington plunging to the lowest level in years. The legislation excludes members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — Venezuela is one — from the loosened tariff regulations that apply to other nations trading with the United States. President Carlos Andres Perez called it "a clear act of economic aggression and political pressure."

5 die as ship hits bridge

At least five persons were killed and 32 injured Sunday night when a 10,000-ton ship rammed the supports of Tasmania bridge in Hobart, Australia. The ship sank and the center section of the bridge collapsed into the Derwent River. Eight members of its crew were missing. Officials believed the ship mistook an opening on the eastern side of the bridge for the main navigation channel. The collapsed section of the bridge fell onto the ship, sinking it within minutes.

Communists attack Saigon suburb

Communist forces bombarded a Saigon suburb with rockets early Monday in the first such attack on the capital's environs in more than three years, military sources said. At least four civilians were killed. The sources said 12 rockets hit the Phu Lam long-range communications site at the western edge of Saigon and a village beside the compound.

Another quake rocks Pakistan

The quake-ravaged areas of northern Pakistan were rocked by another earth tremor of "fairly severe intensity" Sunday, government officials said. No loss of life or damage to property had so far been reported from the new tremor. The officials said army helicopters, which earlier Sunday resumed ferrying relief supplies between Besham base camp and Paiton — the hardest hit area in the killer earthquake one week ago — had to suspend their operations again because of gusty winds.

Court to view 'inspirational' exercises

More than 12 years after the Supreme Court banned mandatory prayer in the nation's public schools, a federal court hearing will be held Wednesday in Orlando, Fla., on whether to allow daily "inspirational" exercises in Orange County schools. The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ordered District Judge George Young to reopen a suit which is seeking to ban the exercises. Four years ago Young ruled the exercises could be held if officials would change their description from "devotional" to "inspirational."

Airline evacuations hit by NTSB

In a sweeping new indictment of airline emergency evacuation equipment and procedures, federal safety experts in Washington said Sunday many passengers have survived aircraft accidents only to be hurt or killed trying to escape on the ground. The National Transportation Safety Board said the Federal Aviation Administration, has refused to take action on a number of potential dangers identified during aircraft accident investigations. The board said: "An examination of accidents indicates passengers are being injured or killed during emergency evacuations following 'survivable' accidents."

Reuss: cut taxes to fight recession

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., a top economic policy-setter in Congress, said Sunday that personal income taxes should be cut by $10 billion within the next 60 days to help control the nation's "intolerable" recession level.

He proposed that taxes be pared by either allowing a $225 credit to low and moderate income wage-earners or by reducing the Social Security payroll levy, which he labeled "the cruellest tax of all."

"One of the primary sources of our economic troubles today is that there is not enough purchasing power by the average middle class family in this country," Reuss said. "We do need a tax cut."

Reuss, a member of both the Joint Congressional Committee and the House Banking Committee, strongly criticized the administration for "running around in circles for so many months while the economy has deteriorated."

"We've got the kind of recession that is absolutely intolerable and which shouldn't have been allowed to get this bad," he said. "We ought to start turning it around tomorrow instead of playing this Rip Van Winkle act that the administration has been playing."

Reuss also said he was "very much opposed" to an oil tariff idea that President Ford reportedly is leaning toward in hopes of reducing consumption.

He said it would have "very bad consequences" on the nation as a whole and would have an especially "unfortunate impact on a lot of innocent people" such as those who drive long distances to and from work.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, meanwhile, said he favored taxing oil imports to reduce them by 1½ million barrels a day — "but only if you couple it with gasoline allocations."

"I think we're headed for certain days on which you can't buy gasoline — perhaps Sundays," Scott said.

In other economic developments:

- The chairman of the new House Social Security subcommittee pledged he will try to lower payroll taxes next year, using general tax revenues to make up the resulting deficit in Social Security funding. Rep. James Burke, D-Mass., branded "outrageous" a recent recommendation by the Social Security Adviso- ry Council which said Social Security taxes should be raised for those already at the maximum and that certain benefits should be lowered.

- The beleaguered U.S. auto industry begins the first full week of 1975 with 14 of its assembly plants closed and nearly 100,000 workers off the job. Thousands more will be out of work in the coming weeks, the automakers say, because production of just 450,000 cars is planned for January — 29 per cent below last year's already depressed pace and the lowest

- for the month in 14 years.

- Five men — employees of the General Services Administration — will gather around a plain, government-issue table today to open sealed bids on 2 million ounces of Treasury Department gold. What they find could push the precious metal's price even lower than the level it reached last week. Although GSA and Treasury officials declined to speculate on auction demand, private experts said the gold bidding probably will be slow and will knock down prices even further.

Following Kissinger's comment

Urge Arab nations shape new oil strategies

By United Press International

The Arab nations should immediately shape new political, military and economic strategies to counter the possibility of American military action against Arab oilfields, a semi-official Egyptian newspaper said Sunday.

Salah Montasser, oil affairs writer for the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, said blowing up oilfields in the event of American military intervention would not be effective enough.

He commented on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's interview with Business Week magazine in which Kissinger raised the possibility of military action if use of oil as a weapon brought "some actual strangulation of the industrial world."

Montasser said an American invasion was no longer inconceivable as some Arab officials believed, and Kissinger's remarks represent "a clearly defined line in his country's strategy."

"It is within the Arabs' power, and they should get on with it immediately, to formulate a new oil strategy different from that adopted in 1973," when the Arabs imposed their oil embargo after the October Arab-Israeli war.

Kuwaiti minister of state Abdel Aziz Hussein, also commenting on the Kissinger interview, said Arab oil-producing countries advocate dialogue and not force in dealing with the world energy iate Republican Leader Hugh Scott disagreed, saying the U.S. "wouldn't be worth a damn as a nation" if it were unwilling to stage a last ditch fight for survival.

In Jerusalem, a homemade bomb police said was planted by Arab terrorists exploded in a trash can next to a stack of egg cartons, splattering passersby with raw eggs but causing no serious casualties. Two other explosive devices were found elsewhere in the city but dismantled before they could go off.

In Cairo, security authorities arrested about 400 Egyptians in the past five days for antistrike activity in the biggest crackdown on local Communists since President Anwar Sadat took office in 1970. The arrests came in the wake of New Year's Day riots in which workers, demanding higher pay and lower prices, clashed with police and stoned shops, offices, buses and private cars.

Drug prices could be cut 50%: panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The price consumers pay for prescription antibiotic drugs could be cut by more than 50 per cent if drug stores were able to buy the lowest priced drugs available, a private research group said Sunday.

The cheaper drugs are not always available to pharmacists because companies producing the more expensive brands often dominate the market, said the report by the Council on Economic Priorities.

There are wide variations in price for drugs that have the same common or generic name but which are sold by different companies to doctors under specific brand names, even though they may be the same in effectiveness, the report said.

Advocating "the reduction of the pharmaceutical industry to the status of a commodity supplier, with price alone as the sole criterion."

"Such a course would bring a virtual end to drug research and to the concept of maintaining standards of excellence in the nation's drug supply — a result we doubt that society prefers when disease still brings vast economic and personal loss to millions of people," he said.

As an example, the Council's study listed the drug erythromycin, which it said is made by Miles Laboratories for SmithKline, Pfizer, Parke-Davis, and Squibb. The published wholesale price varies from $10.15 to as high as $15.87 for identical packages of 100, 250-milligram tablets," said the study.

Another drug, tetracycline hydrochloride, is sold under eight principal different brand names.

"These eight are but a fraction of the brand names under which tetracycline is sold; but they are singled out because they are those products with 1973 drug store sales of more than $300,000 on the supplier level," the report said.

"The transaction price for a package of 1,000 250-milligram capsules ranged among the firms from Pfizer's $16.87 to Lederle's $27.59."

"With respect to non-branded supplier products, CEP found six firms that sold the drug in the same quantity for less than $9.00," said the report published by the non-profit public interest organization which turns out studies of major U.S. corporations.

"If drug stores were able to acquire these drugs at the price of the lowest priced supplier, their acquisition costs could be reduced by more than 50 per cent, a saving that could then be passed on to the consumer," the CEP said.

Report Brezhnev fighting leukemia

Leonid Brezhnev

Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev suffers leukemia and cancellation of his trip to the Middle East was an indication that he must contend with the disease, according to columnist Charles Bartlett. "One agreeable mark of the new U.S.-Soviet relationship is Brezhnev's access to the skills of American cancer specialists," said the nationally-syndicated writer.

Scorecard: Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois and two other Democratic senators — Philip A. Hart of Michigan and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine — received perfect ratings Sunday from the liberal-oriented Americans for Democratic Action. The trio was given 100 per cent ratings for their voting records on 21 key issues picked by the ADA to reflect liberal positions in the past session of Congress. Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland received the highest rating among Republicans, 88 per cent. All in all, the Democrats were rated slightly less liberal in 1974 than in 1973, and the Republicans slightly more liberal.

Funding urged for Harper, Oakton

by WANDALYN RICE

Additional buildings for Harper College in Palatine and the beginning of the Oakton Community College permanent campus in Des Plaines are among the projects recommended for funding by the staff of the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The projects for Harper and Oakton are among $10.2 million worth of proposed building projects for the state's colleges and universities for the 1975-76 school year. The board of higher education will consider the building recommendations and a proposed $810 million operating budget for state colleges and universities at its meeting Tuesday in Chicago.

Once the higher board approves the proposed budgets they will be submitted to the Illinois General Assembly for action. Board chairman Donald Prince said at a news conference Friday that Gov. Daniel Walker has been kept informed of the budget-making process, but that "the governor hasn't said whether he will support this budget recommendation in his own budget message. I would hope that he will support it."

The proposed operating budget calls for a 13.1 per cent increase in the amount spent on all parts of the state higher education system. It includes a 13 per cent increase in the reimbursement given to community colleges for each credit hour of instruction from $19.20 to $21.70.

Other highlights of the budget are:

- A recommendation for no tuition increase for undergraduate students at the state four-year colleges and universities, but a recommendation that tuition at the state's medical, dental and veterinary schools be raised. The increases would place tuition for medical schools at $1,250, dental schools at $900, and veterinary schools at $750 per year.

• A recommendation that salaries for faculty at four-year colleges and universities be increased by 10 per cent to offset inflation.

• A recommendation that $52 million of the $110.2 million allocated for buildings be spent for the new University of Illinois teaching hospital.

Prince and James Furman, executive director to the board, emphasized that the budget represents a large reduction from the amounts originally requested by the state's schools. Original requests for operating funds totaled $191.3 million, Prince said, and requests for buildings from the schools totaled $361 million.

Prince said, "We believe this budget is an excellent balance between supporting higher education quality and making prudent use of the resources of the state." He cautioned officials of individual schools against "going out on their own and trying to get more (from the legislature). I think they may end up with less."

THE FUNDS recommended for building projects for Harper and Oakton total about $12.6 million, including $10,055,176 for beginning construction on Oakton's campus and for land purchase and development of the site. Oakton officials hope construction will start during 1975.

The budget also includes $522,718 to be added to $2,981,000 appropriated last year for vocational education buildings at Harper and $2,063,973 for a classroom building at Harper. Harper officials hope to break ground for the vocational building this spring, with construction on the classroom building beginning about one year later.

The state appropriations represent 75 per cent of the cost of the buildings for the two community colleges. The remaining 25 per cent of the building costs will be paid out of local taxes.

Area schools, governments get $2 million from county

Northwest suburban school districts and municipal governments will receive more than $2 million in tax reserves next month from Cook County.

Nearly $1.1 million will be distributed to area school districts and $185,477 will be sent to eight municipalities, County Treasurer Edward Rosewell said Friday.

High School Dist. 214 will receive the largest area disbursement — $502,924.

Other large local totals include High School Dist. 211, $298,411; High School Dist. 207, $422,296; Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, $173,717 and the City of Des Plaines, $75,976.

A spokesman for Rosewell said, "It's going to be a while, probably a month or two, before the checks are mailed. Most of the funds are tied up in long-term investments and we'll wait until the notes are due before disbursing the funds."

CIRCUIT COURT Judge Arthur Dunne ordered release of nearly $40 million held by Rosewell in a Nov. 10 ruling. The funds have accumulated since 1969 as part of a long-standing practice by county treasurers who held one per cent of taxes collected as a reserve against tax rebates and overassessment adjustments.

Dunne's ruling followed a class-action suit which charged that the one per cent reserve overestimated the amount of rebates paid annually by the treasurer.

Dunne ordered the treasurer's office to limit reserves to three times the average paid in rebates over three years and also prohibited reserves of more than one per cent of taxes collected.

Rosewell, who will not appeal Dunne's order, submitted Thursday a list of the funds to Dunne.

Other local totals include:

• Municipalities: Arlington Heights

More middle-income students to get aid

More middle-income students will qualify for full tuition scholarships under the Illinois State Scholarship program as the result of increases being proposed in the scholarship commission budget.

The staff of the Illinois Board of Higher Education is recommending a 16.1 per cent increase which will provide aid to about 108,000 Illinois residents, board officials said.

The budget also calls for an increase in the maximum scholarship awarded to students from $1,250 to $1,500. Part-time students will be eligible for up to $750.

Under the proposed budget $4.5 million has been budgeted for scholarships to part-time students, an increase of 157 per cent over last year, the first year of the part-time scholarship program. Officials said they expect more than 60 per cent of the part-time scholarships to go to students at community colleges.

Also included in the budget are funds that will allow the scholarship commission to require a lower financial contribution from parents before a student qualifies for aid.

Must pay child support

If a person is laid off work and is not receiving a pay check, is he still obligated to make child support payments?

Yes, anyone required by a court decree to make support payments will be obligated to make the payments until the decree is changed by the court.

Schools

River Trails Dist. 26

The Parkview School PTA will sponsor the Heiken Puppets in "An Angry Moon — Legends of Alaska" in two morning performances Tuesday at the school, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The Cumberand School PTA will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school, 700 Golf Rd., Des Plaines. The program will deal with special education courses offered at the school and will involve principal Robert Paulsen and special-education teachers.

The program includes discussion of how children are screened and recommended for classes; language development; the opportunity to advance to regular classes, and the typical classroom day. Refreshments will be served by third-and fourth-grade room mothers following the program.

High School Dist. 125

Registration for swimming classes for elementary and preschool children at Stevenson High School, Prairie View, will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday at the school.

The classes will be Jan. 18-March 22 and will cost $10 for 10 sessions. Classes will be offered at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. for kindergarten through eighth-grade students and at noon for preschool children.

Open swimming for the public will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. and will cost 50 cents.

A swimming class for men also will be held Tuesdays beginning Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8 p.m. The fee for the lessons is $10. Registration will be held the first night the class meets.

"The Entertainers," a ragtime band of Stevenson High School students, will perform during the intermission of the Margot Grimmer American Ballet Company's production at Barrington High School Friday.

The group also will present a show at North Park College Jan. 24 during a performance of the ballet company.

"The Entertainers" includes Kurt Schubert, Polly Paulson, Ron Wirth, Ray Cook, Brad Howell and Wendy Bade.

Notre Dame High School

The alumni association of Notre Dame High School, Niles, will host its first dinner-theater party Feb. 1 at the Country Club Theatre, Mount Prospect. Dinner will be served at 8:30 p.m. followed by the play "Butterflies are Free" at 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 per person and can be obtained from Paul Kanter, 724-0091. Paid reservations are necessary and must be made by Wednesday, Jan. 15.

In general . . .

"What do young people think about the future?" is the theme of a nationwide contest sponsored by Encyclopedia Britannica Inc. and Scholastic Magazine Inc. for junior and senior high school students.

Winners will receive cash prizes and sets of the new "Britannica 3." In addition, teachers of winning students will receive sets of "The Annals of America," a 20-volume set describing the life and history of the United States from 1492.

Entries are to be based on one or more of the following areas: matter and energy, the Earth, life on Earth, human life, human society, art, technology, religion, the history of mankind and the branches of knowledge.

Students attending Grades 7-12 in any public, private or parochial schools in the United States or Canada or of any U.S.-sponsored school abroad may submit an entry.

Entries may be written, drawn, photographed, tape-recorded or multimedia, and must be postmarked by Jan. 12.

Rules and entry forms are available by writing Futures Unlimited Awards, Scholastic Magazines, 900 Sylvan Ave., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632.

Herald opinion

Budget example set by governor

With families and businesses everywhere undergoing sometimes agonizing cutbacks in their spending habits, it is encouraging to see Gov. Daniel Walker applying the same belt-tightening to state government.

The governor has declared a freeze on hiring in state government and directed agencies under his control to reduce non-essential spending practices. He has estimated that these steps can save the state $15 million per year.

That sum, in an annual budget of nearly $8 billion, is not overwhelming. But as we are all coming to realize in these times, every dollar counts.

We agree with Walker that layoffs of persons now employed should be avoided, in cases where their job functions are justified. We would, however, encourage him to take a close look at his personnel lists and determine whether there is any fat to be trimmed from the governor's payroll.

Among his budget-trimming directives is one ordering government agencies to justify or eliminate "certain middle management positions." The governor would be well-advised to take the lead in doing this, and in doing it publicly.

Aside from personnel, Walker ordered a 20 per cent reduction in overtime expenses, a 10 per cent cutback in contractual services, and a 50 per cent reduction in costs for copying documents. He also ordered a halt to certain travel expenses, such as paying for lunches of state employees on the road, and eliminating publication of "newsletters" which were often used by government agencies for their own aggrandizement.

While these may not seem earth-shattering, they are the kinds of steps which can add up to a substantial saving, and which should be made a permanent part of state policy. If the governor can make his policy work and avoid any increase in state taxes, he will have done a service to the taxpayers' beleaguered pocketbooks.

Fulbright's legacy

The Renaissance man from the hills of Arkansas, J. William Fulbright, is gone from the U.S. Senate, but his standards of leadership, in both foreign and domestic affairs, remain to guide both present and future Senators.

The affable Fulbright was, of course, best known for his leadership of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, especially at the height of the Vietnam War when his committee dared to ask unsettling questions about American participation in that conflict.

In recent years, Fulbright has been a strong advocate of detente and a supporter of the achievements of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. It's consistent with his beliefs that cooperation, not conflict, should be the goals of American foreign policy.

His legacy to this nation extends far beyond the doors of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, however. As a freshman Congressman in 1948, he submitted the resolution which helped create the United Nations. In 1946 he initiated the international exchange program for students and scholars, which continues as the Fulbright-Hays program. In the 1950s and 1960s, he helped create the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C., and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Fulbright's 31-year career in Congress ended when he was defeated for reelection last year by Dale Bumpers, Arkansas governor. But the legacy of J. William Fulbright, as a benchmark of leadership for other elected officials, must never be forgotten by the members of Congress who will lead this nation in future years.

Dangerous daredevil

A daredevil exploit from the summer of 1974 has become a spectre for the parents of small children across the United States.

The culprit is Evel Knievel, that devil-may-care maniac who tried and failed last September to leap the Snake River Canyon in Idaho on a rocket-powered motorcycle.

Predictably, Knievel's well-publicized jump has encouraged our children to duplicate the feat by using tricycles and bicycles on a smaller scale.

U.S. Rep. John M. Murphy,

D-N.Y., has reported on the results of a survey of the Knievel-inspired mayhem which show at least 57 hospital cases following from youthful imitations of Evel's jump.

Most of the injured are boys ranging in age from 5 to 13. The injuries? "Abrasions, contusions, fractures, lacerations, sprains, hematomas, head trauma," reported Murphy.

The lesson here is obvious: parents have a responsibility to show their children that Evel's jump should not be duplicated. Perhaps it would be better if the adults found a slightly less manic "hero" to idolize in 1975, at least for the sake of our children.

Fulbright's farewell: Inflation a threat to democracy

by NICHOLAS DANIELOFF

WASHINGTON — J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., ended 30 years in the Senate this week convinced that industrial nations, including the United States, face economic and political collapse unless they can gain a substantial reduction in oil prices within the next few years.

"It's very serious, this continued erosion of the economic base of the non-Communist world," he said in a farewell interview with UPI. "It's no small matter. I think it is much more serious than the administration seems to think."

Fulbright said it was crucial to persuade oil-producing countries within the next five years to lower their prices from $10 or more a barrel to a "reasonable price" of $7 or $8 a barrel.

"Otherwise, we are all going broke," he said.

"And when I say broke, I mean the system — I mean the non-Communist economic system — is very likely to collapse, and with it the individual countries."

"As you know, the political system usually goes with it, and you get a trend towards authoritarianism, and everything else."

He paused: "It's extremely serious, and especially when you consider that China is not undergoing it at all. China is very stable . . ."

. . . exports oil . . . is a powerful country."

FULBRIGHT, RELAXED and comfortable in an old tweed jacket, was interviewed in his office the day before he resigned on New Year's Eve to give his seat to former Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers, his successful primary election opponent.

Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee since 1969, Fulbright expressed disappointment at the cold war distrust and suspicion he still sees in Congress.

He was critical of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., for attacking President Ford's strategic arms agreement with the Soviets and for using the foreign trade act to force Moscow to ease restrictions on Jewish emigration.

Jackson makes no bones about it," Fulbright said. "He has no trust, no confidence whatever in the Russians."

"But how do you get it? Do you develop it by threats? No. You do not. I think you get it by negotiations, by mutual respect and understanding."

"I think Congress has put extremely serious obstacles in Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's way in this interference with detente, and in their complete and unrestrained support of Israel — to a point where it removes any incentive for Israel to seek a settlement."

"And these are obstacles which it is very difficult for the secretary to overcome."

J. William Fulbright

FULBRIGHT SAID "cold warriors in the Kremlin" were bound to have questions about the seriousness of U.S. policy on detente and the White House's ability to conclude agreements that would have congressional support.

As he warned during a Nov. 2 speech at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., scene of Winston Churchill's famous "iron curtain" speech in 1946, Fulbright believes Italy "may conceivably succumb to communism or neo-fascism" under its present economic strains.

Britain, with its strong parliamentary tradition, might weather the storm for a longer time, he said, but "whatever the circumstances of each country, the fact remains that inflation has become a clear and present danger to democracy, including our American democracy."

IN TRIBUTE to this achievement, Kissinger said at a recent ceremony at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars that after World War II, Fulbright had "perceived sooner than others that the cold war order must give way to a more pluralist and tolerant system in which neither great power would try to remold the world in its own image."

Sold Kissinger: "His views were often unpopular when first advanced, but because he voiced them, opinion came to terms more rapidly with the reality he perceived. He has exercised leadership, not to exalt his own position, but to bring his country abreast of his own understanding."

Fulbright plans to stay in Washington for a while, perhaps serving from time to time as a special consultant to the State Department.

Kissinger has indicated Fulbright will have work to do. "Bill Fulbright's wisdom will not be lost to this nation," he said.

Letters to the fence post

Levi critics are accused of partisan gamesmanship

The apparent controversy over the choice of Edward Levi to be U.S. attorney general impresses me as an example of the kind of political gamesmanship that has gotten this country into the mess it now finds itself. I — and I suspect a great, great many other people — are getting fed up.

President Ford has picked a man who seems to have outstanding qualifications to hold the most important law enforcement position in the federal government. Most important, unlike his predecessors he is not a party hack or hatchet man for politicians but a noted and respected legal scholar with a fine reputation for integrity and independence.

The best thing to be said in defense of Ford's choice of Levi is that it is being opposed by men such as James Eastland, John G. Tower and Roman Hruska — none of them very distinguished performers in the Senate and, significantly, none whose record of support for Richard Nixon and the White House power elite is anything to boast about. Haven't we had enough incompetent party hacks in government without our further adhering to these critics' demand for a more acceptable politician in the post? To the contrary, I was impressed and reassured by the President's picking a man of Levi's credentials.

I could not agree more with your editorial (Dec. 30) in which you said, "the selection made great sense in any objective analysis."

Please, urge citizens to write Sens. Percy and Stevenson and the President and express support for Mr. Levi. Otherwise, Messrs. Eastland, Tower and Hruska are going to see to it that we get another John Mitchell as attorney general.

The lighter side

Can we actually bite the bullet?

by DICK WEST

Speculation is rife this week over what President Ford had in mind when he vowed he would soon propose "hard and tough" new economic measures.

Some observers are predicting his program will be hard enough to include a tax cut. But I think it unlikely the President will get that tough.

For one thing, as Ford once said in another connection, the people wouldn't stand for it.

And how would he ever get it through Congress?

The Senate conceivably might take a statesman-like approach, putting the national interest ahead of political considerations, and approve a tax reduction.

BUT THE NEW House of Representatives, with its heavily Democratic majority, is expected to be inordinately sensitive to public opinion.

When the cards and letters of protest start rolling in from the folks back home, you can bet that House members will quickly abandon any notion of cutting taxes.

Ford, very much a political animal himself, undoubtedly is aware of this. While I can picture him recommending some sort of plan under which people could voluntarily reduce their taxes, I find it difficult to believe he would make the reduction mandatory.

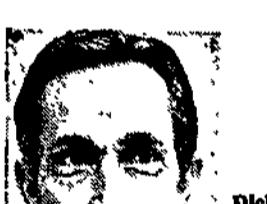

The voluntary system would be easy to install. There could simply be a place at the bottom of the income tax form where taxpayers could indicate whether they wished to receive a larger rebate than the amount to which they would otherwise be entitled.

Or, if they owed more taxes than had been withheld, they could check a box that would automatically put them in a lower bracket.

THE TYPE OF leadership that might condition the American people to accept mandatory tax reductions isn't being provided at this time.

Citizens in the rank and file just aren't convinced the nation's economic ills are serious enough to warrant such hard and tough action.

Dick West

I personally am convinced the time has come when Ford should take the bull by the horns and the bullet between his teeth and appoint a federal commission to study the economic situation.

Confronted with problems they didn't quite know how to handle, presidents traditionally have established commissions to look into the matter and report back in six months.

It sounds drastic, sure. But it may be the only way to jolt complacency and make people realize there is an emergency severe enough to warrant a tax cut.

People are saying...

"A man doesn't get up at 5 a.m. because he wants to socialize with Holmes."

— Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz defending profits for dairymen.

"There is a sexual blurring going on. The boys are looking more feminine. But they aren't sexy. Maybe it's like those rats who, when overcrowded, get very bland and lose all interest in sex."

— Author Gore Vidal on young peoples' changing sexual attitudes.

"It is well enough to speak of art for art's sake but, in the real world, no enterprise can respond indefinitely to a growing demand when it cannot even cover its current costs."

— Robert W. Sarnoff, RCA president, calling for greater public support of the arts.

I am writing to you in re: to the recent refusal of the U.S. Supreme Court to hear: Gilligan versus Cook County, the "Wheel Tax Suit."

We cannot understand how the U.S. Supreme Court can agree to hear some cases of lesser importance and refuse ours, which involves the principle of "taxation without representation." The system by which one case is chosen to be heard over another seems faulty.

Perhaps the dynasty of this court should be investigated. We do not wish to cast aspersions onto the U.S. Supreme Court justices themselves, but merely question the under staff who is responsible.

Election of speaker Wednesday*Dems to spur changes in House?

by BOB LAIETY

Barring a crossover of Republicans in Wednesday's election of the speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives, a group of reform-minded Democrats appear to be in a position to force changes in some House procedures.

At least 17 Democrat legislators last week subscribed to a list of reforms in House rules, and said they expected more to join them in a pledge not to support any speaker candidate who would not approve the plan.

With Democrats enjoying a majority of 101 to 76 over Republicans in the 79th General Assembly, which convenes Wednesday, election of a Democratic speaker is assured.

However, 89 votes are required to elect a speaker, and unless Republicans cross over to vote for a Democrat — a rare occurrence in the House — the 17 could deny election to any candidate not acceding to their demands.

Included in the group are Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glenco; Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; and Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine.

The group, which includes at least four other suburban legislators, as well as representatives from Rockford, Springfield and other Downstate towns, said they are not pledged to any candidate who agrees to their proposals.

They added that the seven proposals, which they called "a minimum platform" for any speaker candidate, represent a consensus on needed reforms, but leave room for "individual variances in opinions" on details.

Proposals by the group include:

- Creation of a House Committee on Operations. This committee would be given a voice in expenditures by the speaker of $3.3 million in funds for operation of the House, and would conduct open meetings.

- Rules on appropriations. Submission of the governor's budget to the General Assembly would be advanced from the first Wednesday in March to mid-January in the first year of the biennium. The House Appropriations Committee would be directed to prepare bills conforming to the budget if the governor's message was not accompanied by such bills.

- Scheduling of bills. Earlier deadlines for the introduction and advancement of bills would be enforced to avoid the logjam of legislation in May and June.

- Notice of legislative votes. This would require the speaker to give public notice when important bills are to be called for a vote on the floor, similar to a rule adopted in 1973 requiring 6½ days notice of committee hearings.

- Rules on conference committees. Notice would be required of the membership, business, and time and place of meetings of conference committees, followed by adequate notice to all members of the House of the nature of the conference committee report. In the last session of the legislature, many members complained that they were unable to obtain copies of conference committee reports and many doubted that the committee ever met.

- Veto overrides. Adequate notice would be required to the House members of the substance of motions to override vetoes by the governor.

- Suspension of rules. To prevent capricious suspension of the rules, written notice of a motion to suspend would be submitted to the clerk of the House, who then would be required to place the question on the House calendar before a vote could be called. Unanimous consent would be required to suspend the House rules.

County vehicle license deadline is Feb. 15

Deadline for purchasing 1975 county vehicle tax licenses by unincorporated-area residents is Feb. 15.

Cost of the stickers is $10 for vehicles under 35 horsepower and $15 for vehicles more than 35 horsepower, County Treasurer Edward Rosewell said Friday.

The licenses are sold in the County building at the treasurer's office and by mail. Applications are available at municipal buildings and at sheriff's offices throughout the county.

Feb. 15 also is the deadline for displaying 1975 Illinois license plates.

The U. S. Supreme Court denied to hear last fall a court challenge to the tax by unincorporated-area residents. About 100,000 vehicles must display the wheel tax stickers, Rosewell said.

Fraternities flourishing but hazing on way out

by FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

Fraternities are flourishing again on American campuses, but the hoary custom of "hazing" pledges is the exception rather than the rule.

Hazing, widespread before the mid-1960s when Greek letter fraternities and sororities lost their popularity with students, could range from scavenger hunts to paddling and other physical abuse occasionally resulting in injury and even death. The hazing period was often called "hell week."

The suffocation in November of William Flowers, a Monmouth College (N.J.) student, when a grave he was forced to dig as part of a Zeta Beta Tau initiation rite collapsed on him, led to speculation that hazing was making a comeback. A United Press International survey of a score of colleges and universities from Columbia University in New York to the University of Hawaii indicates that this is not the case.

THE Indianapolis-based National Interfraternity Conference has banned hazing activities among its members, 45 of the nation's 60 fraternities on some 600 campuses. University authorities believe the ban is honored except in isolated cases. Paddles bearing fraternity symbols have been relegated to wall decoration, they say.

Records of hazing tragedies in the past 10 years are scarce and most indicate that the element of accident is more common than premeditated physical punishment which could result in civil court charges. As an example, the last publicized hazing death prior to that of Flowers happened in 1973 when Sigma Nu pledges at Butler University in Indiana were running along a highway at night. One was struck and killed by a car.

"WE HAVE DEFINED hazing and banned it and every member fraternity has banned it," said Jack L. Anson, executive director of the National Interfraternity Conference. "There is usually one tragic incident a year that draws national attention. What may start out to be the most innocent thing in the world can have tragic results. Our problem is education and re-education as to what is expected of fraternity members and what we consider undesirable actions."

Undesirable actions, in addition to any form of physical abuse or exercise that might be dangerous, includes quests, treasure hunts and outlandish garb that are likely to hold a person up to public attention or ridicule, according to Anson.

HE INSISTED that hazing is not widespread and noted that pledges are "much more independent than they were" a few years ago. A number of fraternities no longer have pledges but name associate members who are activated at the end of a month or two or orientation sessions.

Herb Schwomeyer, dean of men at Butler, said he was confident that hazing is "on a very limited basis and takes place behind closed doors." Only the most obvious cases come to light. A brand of Greek letters on the forearm of a Cornell fraternity initiate led last year to a ban on "any physically or psychologically harmful or mutilating activities" by the Interfraternity Council at that university.

Dean Henry Coleman of Columbia College, Columbia University's undergraduate school, said he was surprised even to be asked about hazing because "that dates back to the '30s and '40s and was already on its way out here in the '50s."

BUT EDWARD KING, dean of men at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill., voiced a warning that hazing "seems to be coming back a little."

"I am a national officer of Sigma Chi and talking with other officers, I find that last year and this year there seem to be more incidents," King said. "It's a surprise to us. During the periods of student activism a few years ago there was absolutely no hazing."

Dean Ann Hawley, assistant director of student activities at the University of California at Berkeley, reported that anti-hazing statements are given out to the campus' 29 fraternities (five more than in 1970) each quarter and they must be signed by the house president.

"There is still probably a little fun and games, but nothing like Monmouth," Dean Hawley said. "If we found out about anything rough, we would take action. The frats now usually make pledges do cleanup work."

CLEANUP WEEK has, indeed, replaced "hell week," according to Tom Spleker, president of Beta Theta Pi at UC.

"Hell week isn't physical any more," he said. "The guys clean up, paint and do constructive work around the house. I think it is very constructive because it brings the house together. At the end of the initiation period it makes for a stronger fraternity."

A spokesman for Stanford University in California, which has 12 fraternities, three of them coed, said there had been no hazing incidents for 20 years. Stanford had 24 fraternities in the 1960s and even then "hazing was stuff like depeanting some guy and leaving him in the mountains." Hazing is banned by state law in California.

Houses that haze have difficulties getting students to join, a number of students pointed out.

Rick Wagoner, president of Delta Tau Delta at Duke University, summed it up this way: "Today brothers don't feel it necessary to engage in this sort of activity. They're more serious. They want more of a friendship relationship."

MOM'S SKILL as a hairdresser comes in handy at home for Jeff Martin, whose mother, Mrs. Carol Martin, trims his hair while brother Chris waits his turn. Mrs. Martin, who lives with her family in Palatine, took up hair dressing when she decided she needed to get out of the house more. She really enjoys it.

The working woman

Her job more than a diversion

by BILLIE BACHRUBER

Suburban women in increasing numbers are working outside the home in a variety of jobs for a variety of reasons. Single, married with and without children, divorced and widowed. All work — some to earn a pay check, some for personal satisfaction and diversion, some for both reasons.

Whatever she chooses to do and why, "the working woman" most likely is proud of her efforts.

Carol Martin, a part-time beautician, certainly feels that way. The Palatine homemaker worked as a sales analyst at Motorola before she married her husband, Bob, a manufacturing engineer for Automatic Electric. Mrs. Martin switched jobs because she prefers people to numbers. However, getting into the hair styling business was accidental, she said.

STRICTLY A HOMEMAKER before sons Jeffery, 12, and Christopher, 11, began running about, Carol felt a real need for outside-the-home diversion after she miscarried twins. So when a cousin asked her to shampoo customers one Saturday afternoon, she accepted. And stayed for five years!

Carol liked associating with women and working with their hair so much that she began studying at Continental Beauty School in Elmwood Park. Four years after giving her first shampoo, she obtained her state license.

"I was a darned good shampoo girl and didn't expect to become anything else because I thought I had no talent," Carol said. But with help and encouragement from others in the business, she decided to give hair dressing a try. "And I wanted to prove I could do it," she recalled with a smile.

FOLLOWING the philosophy that she teaches her sons, "to do the best you know how, and to enjoy it," Mrs. Martin encountered little difficulty in the academic side of the training. However, handling hair at first was hard for her. To compensate she attended classes, workshops and shows to observe techniques in styling, cutting and coloring, and she continues to learn all she can.

As a member of the Northwest Suburban Hairdressers Association (NSHA), Carol keeps up on all the newest trends and improvements, volunteers her skills to local nursing homes and others, goes to state conventions and attends or competes in shows.

To become a permanent member of the Hair Fashion Committee of the NSHA, a beautician must create an original hair style three times in five years. The contestant is judged by an impartial panel. Carol proudly reports she recently won a certificate for her first attempt.

CAROL'S EMPLOYER, Bertha Schmidt, owner of the Berth O' Beauty Salon in Mount Prospect, encourages her operators to keep abreast of the latest in the beauty business. Mrs. Schmidt herself is an immediate past president of the local hairdressers group.

Though she relishes all aspects of her work, Carol Martin puts her customers first. "My first duty is to please that person in the chair," she declared. With that in mind, she tries to find a becoming hair style and what's best for a particular client's hair. "Communication's the key so I talk to my customers," she said.

Working outside the home comes naturally for Carol Martin. Her mother also is a working woman. Carol enjoys getting out of her home and feels a sense of accomplishment when she creates a becoming hair style or coloring job, gives a good "perm" or hair cut. But just pleasing her customers satisfies her, though she admits her salary and tips help boost the family income.

HOW DOES CAROL'S family view her job? Her sons are proud of her, and now that their grandmother, Romayne Martin, lives in her own apartment, are becoming more independent, she thinks.

"Gram's" help made it possible for Carol to work when the boys were smaller.

At first Bob Martin regarded his wife's endeavors as sort of a hobby, but now he encourages her, sharing her sense of accomplishment and understanding better her outside-the-home needs, Carol said.

Carol believes that a wife has different needs from her husband. And a woman shouldn't feel guilty about that difference. Nor should she ignore it, in Carol's opinion.

Working part-time allows Mrs. Martin plenty of time for family and other interests. For recreation she bowls once a week and she likes to read. She also enjoys cooking — especially Italian style.

FAMILY ORIENTED, the Martins attend St. Theresa Catholic Church in Palatine. Holidays and other special days are shared with both sides of the family.

One family interest is hockey.

Carol and Bob and sons are active in the Rolling Meadows Hockey Club where Christopher plays goalie on the Pee Wee traveling team. Both Chris and Jeff are members of the Rolling Meadows Park District hockey team. Jeff, who plays forward and wing, was a leading scorer this past year.

"The boys could play hockey morning, noon and night!" said their proud mother and biggest fan.

yellow, lavender and blue. The most treasured and valued color is a fine translucent emerald green.

Nephrite stones are found in pale green, moss, spinach, white, gray-white, deep gray, brown, black and various combinations. It is mined in California, Wyoming, Montana, Alaska, New Zealand, Germany and Siberia.

WHEREAS Jadeite has a gleaming clear glass, nephrite has more of an oily luster.

The expert warned that some other gem stones have appearances similar to jade, among them quartz, garnet, onyx, soapstone and chalcedony. Many of these have been sold as jade.

Jade was valued in China as the purest and most divine natural treasure. Confucius reported that jade represented virtue and humanity.

NCJW chapter takes first steps

A newly formed chapter of National Council of Jewish Women in the Schaumburg area will take its "first steps" at a meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the First Federal Savings and Loan at 800 E. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg.

The new group welcomes all women from the communities of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove, Hanover Park, Arlington Heights and surrounding areas.

At January's meeting a name will be chosen, chairmen will be appointed and a social fund-raising project will be determined.

Further information is available from Marilyn Ruben, 437-7442.

Defensive driver

Ever since the day I got my learner's permit, I wondered about the phrase, "Drive Defensively." Until I developed confidence in my own ability to handle a car, I thought the slogan was a warning to everyone else on the road. Later on I had other interpretations. But it was just last week when I found out what "Drive Defensively" really means.

My discovery came about on the way back from the car wash.

It was one of those grey, sloppy days when the world was a soup of slush, cinders and salt, and the car was indistinguishable from a pile of the soggy stuff accumulated by the curb, except that the key fit. Although I am of the mind that it's pointless to have a car washed before March of any given winter, I know my husband is not. Besides, I recognized by his tone when he said, "Please get the car washed today," that if I didn't, he would have it done on the weekend when the prices are higher.

So I took it to the professionals who stripped it of its cinders, slush and salt, leaving it gleaming at the other end of the tunnel. I blinked at it for a moment, failing to recognize it. After all, it had been since October. It was a little bluer than I had recalled. But it looked terrific, and the key still fit.

Then I took it out on the street.

Instantly I realized how few people in this world care that you have a clean car. Other cars splashed by in the opposite direction when they could have chosen the far lane. Still more cars passed me, caring little for my burnished bumpers and glistening grille. Thoughtless drivers made me go through puddles and actually wait under dripping overpasses.

WHILE CRINGING by a curb, waiting for a light to change, I seriously thought of running the buggy up on the clean sidewalk or through a dry shopping center mall. And I wished then that there were some way to get the full-sized wagon to tip-toe through the water.

As the light changed, I leaped ahead of the other cars, watching nervously for those who dared to pass too closely or who in any other way tried to dirty my whitewalls. Then I realized I had managed to reach that plateau of automobilesmanship so highly exhorted — Defensive Driving.

When I got home I figured the car could have been dirtier, but I'm not sure I'm going to be able to live with my newly acquired driving attitude. It will be a long time before a stray auto horn won't make me want to step on the accelerator and a dripping bathroom faucet won't make me want to step on the brakes.

Next on the agenda

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cline

Palatine couple recall struggles of 50 years

When Alma and Norman Cline say they feel sorry for the young people losing their jobs during the current recession, they know what they are talking about for Norman, too, was without a job during their early marriage. Married Dec. 20, 1924, for the Clines the years before the Depression were the worst.

As they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last month, they recalled those years as a chapter in their lives they could never forget.

When their only child, Russell, was born in 1926, Norman was without work and the little family was virtually "down to nothing." Their last $5 went to the doctor when Alma had the flu, but when the doctor learned of their predicament, he returned the money so they could buy the needed medicine.

WITH THE HELP of their families and relief from the government in the form of flour, beans, pork fat, a pall of lard, tea and a half ton of coal a month, they lived on biscuits and tea. "Of course we eventually paid the doctor back," recalls

Alma, who adds, "and I still haven't lost my taste for tea!"

Norman shoveled coal and did anything that came along. When the real Depression hit, their luck changed. Norman found work in a Chicago seed factory. Later he went with Victor Adding Machine, retiring in 1969 after 19 years with that company.

The couple "met" through the mails when Norman was in the Marines. Their wedding took place in Chicago where they resided until moving to Palatine in 1948.

THEIR HOME AT 224 S. Clyde boasts three prolific apple trees and Norman raises vegetables which the couple cans together. Alma's hobbies also include crocheting, knitting and other handwork.

For their 50th wedding party on Dec. 20, Russell and his wife, June, also Palatine residents, gave a dinner party for 40 at the Den in Schaumburg. Guests included the anniversary pair's three area grandchildren, one from California and another from Colorado, and their two great-grandchildren.

As for using plain glass jars for freezing, my own experience has been convincing. After two sturdy coffee jars cracked with my wonderful (to me, at any rate) vegetable soup in them, even with proper allowance for expansion, I bought plastic containers. What do all the protesters want me to do? Go against official, expert advice?

Dear Dorothy: Can you substitute cocoa for baking chocolate in a recipe that calls for the chocolate? —Helena Ottwell.

Have never tried it in cakes, but I do for brownies. For each ounce of chocolate, I use one-quarter cup of cocoa and one tablespoon of margarine. Works out fine.

Dear Dorothy: This hint is for the reader who wondered what to do with a blanket that had become harsh and shrunken after being washed in too-hot water. My grandmother gave me three lovely woolen blankets that also had been through very hot water. With nothing to lose, I washed them in lukewarm water on the gentle cycle, adding a cup of fabric softener in the rinse cycle. I put them into the dryer on the warm-permanent press cycle for 35 minutes. They came out very soft, just fit my beds and with no static electricity. I expect them to stretch a little with constant use. —June Gilbert.

Mike Wallace on talking end—never a dull moment

NEW YORK — When you step into Mike Wallace's office at CBS, you expect to see him sharpening a hatchet for his next interview on "60 Minutes."

But Wallace, TV's best and toughest interviewer, is ready to talk. The initial subject is the return of "60 Minutes" Sunday and his chat with G. Gordon Liddy, the silent man of Watergate.

"He's stubborn, brave, a patriot, and an erratic and confused man," said Wallace. "He says he doesn't think there can be a democratic army, and he likes to talk about the German work ethic — Volkswagens are better than Vegas.

"HE REGARDS politics as war, and in war one does what is necessary to defeat the enemy."

Liddy, now free pending the outcome of his appeal, already has served 22 months of a six-year sentence. For his appearance on "60 Minutes," he refused to discuss anything substantive about Watergate. Nevertheless, Wallace, once called TV's DA, tried to pick Liddy's combination.

"I really didn't expect him to tell me what he wouldn't discuss in court," said Wallace. "...What the segment will show is really a character sketch of the only man who didn't talk."

DESPITE LIDDY'S silence, Wallace, 56, has had his share of headline-making revelations.

On "60 Minutes," Paul Meadlo told about Lt. William Calley and the My Lai massacre; Lt. Col. Anthony Herbert (ret.), who alleged his military career was wrecked when he charged the Army with covering up war crimes in Vietnam, was embarrassed when his answers conflicted with the testimony of others. And Norman Mailer was shown to have sloppily researched his book about Marilyn Monroe, "Marilyn."

Among Wallace's most famous interviews was with mobster Mickey Cohen, who found himself calling a police officer a "sadistic degenerate" and an "alcoholic." A $3 million libel suit followed.

DOES WALLACE enjoy leading interviewees down the garden path before pushing them over a cliff?

"You get a certain sort of thrill," said Wallace. "I'd be less candid to say I didn't get some sort of satisfaction when you see an interviewee confronted with a statement of fact that pulls the legs out from under the position he has taken. Of course, you feel good because you discovered something the interviewee didn't want you to discover."

"But I have no intention to destroy anybody. The point is to illuminate and report the information."

When pacemaker needed

Would a pacemaker help a left bundle branch block? How is a pacemaker installed and is it necessary to stop the heart?

There are numerous types of pacemakers. They represent a really important advance in saving lives of people with heart disease.

The pacemaker has nothing at all to do with bundle branch block. It is used when there is a serious block between the top and bottom of the heart. Before each heart beat an electrical impulse passes down over the top chambers (atria) and enters the lower pumping chambers (ventricles). When disease affects the area between the top and bottom chambers the impulse cannot get through. The pumping chambers may not pump fast enough on their own or even pump at all. When this happens then there is not enough circulation, if any, to the brain and vital organs.

The pacemaker literally bridges the gap where the disease is and stimulates the pumping chambers to contract regularly fast enough to maintain adequate circulation. The electrical mechanism may be set at a given rate or may even change as the rate of the top of the heart changes. These differences are variations in the types of pacemakers available.

YOU CAN HAVE a pacemaker machine outside the body used as a temporary device while the heart is recovering from a heart attack or even after heart surgery. If the heart regains its normal capacity to beat automatically on its own it can be discontinued at that time.

When the disease causes permanent damage a small pacemaker unit for power is surgically placed under the skin and the wires from the unit go to the heart. This enables the person to go about his usual business, even hiking if he has a mind to do so, and there are no other disease complications. Incidentally, you don't have to stop the heart to put in the pacemaker.

Bundle branch block (right or left) refers to a problem in transmitting the electrical impulse to the left or right side of the pumping chambers. It may cause a momentary delay, in the order of hundredths of a second, in contraction of the blocked side. This has no important consequence. These blocks are mostly important only in relation to what causes them. If it is a birth defect it may not be important at all. If a bundle branch block develops because of a heart attack, it is important only in that it reveals the presence of the heart attack.

If you blocked all of the electrical fibers to the right and left side of the heart at the same time you could produce a form of block between the top and bottom of the heart. In emergency situations, as in a coronary care unit, this is kept in mind and is one reason the personnel there are concerned when a bundle branch block occurs during the heart attack illness. However, they are equipped to handle that problem if it arises.

St. Viator plays two, wins one in league

St. Patrick has scare from Lions

by ART MUGALIAN

The guy in the St. Patrick uniform who was sitting on the bench at St. Viator Friday evening is an All-State basketball player. His name is Emmett McGovern.

So what was he doing on the bench?

McGovern was cooling his heels after picking up three fouls in the first six minutes of play. The 6-foot-4 guard with the 22-point average missed all of the second quarter and much of the second half, managing just 12 points.

But the highly ranked Shamrocks of coach Max Kurland won anyway — with McGovern far below par — slipping St. Viator, 61-52, after the Lions had thrown a big scare into St. Patrick, now 10-2 on the season.

Kurland's Shamrocks are 5-0 in East Suburban Catholic league play thanks largely to their senior center Tony Smith. The big senior led all scorers with 25 points and he had several key offensive rebounds.

"When McGovern's not in there, we have to adjust accordingly," said Kurland after the game. "We become more team oriented. Tonight Tony Smith picked up the load."

Smith's 12 first-half points helped build a commanding 33-24 edge. St. Viator's regular backboard brigade of 6-6 Glenn Girard and 6-4 Bill Foreman weren't able to control Smith.

"He's some player," marvelled Lion coach Steve Antrim. "I think they list him at 6-4, but he's a lot bigger than that."

It was 6-6 freshman Paul Wiloff who kept the Lions in the game with four first half baskets. The big forward was impressive in his varsity debut, scoring 12 points and grabbing five rebounds.

Girard and guard Paul Kastner led the charge in the second half as St. Viator caught and passed St. Pat. Girard began clicking on his medium-length jump shots and Kastner found the range on his 23-footers from the perimeter.

With less than a minute to play in the third period, Ted Antonik of St. Pat was called for a flagrant foul and Girard went to the line. The big Lion center dropped in two free throws and St. Viator led for the first time, 42-41.

But Smith answered with two quick baskets, including one right at the third-quarter buzzer which gave the Shamrocks a 45-42 advantage. A jumper from the corner by Foreman at the start of the final period moved the Lions to within one, but Smith came back with a pair of free throws and a 12-foot swish and St. Pat was on top by five.

Wiloff hit a 12-foot jumper and Kastner bombed from 30 feet, but then McGovern — back in the game — took a pass from Smith and scored an easy layup to make it 55-52 with 2:30 left.

"I thought we had them," said Antrim. "We had three shots to score at 65-52 and we couldn't do it. St. Pat's won't give you the game — they're too tough."

Smith stole a Kastner pass intended for Girard. McGovern swept away a rebound, and reserve guard Mark Nichol dropped in two free throws. Then McGovern drove the length of the court and banked the clincher.

"I was really proud of the kids tonight," said Antrim, whose Lions are 5-7 with a 2-3 league mark. "If you can rebound with those monsters, then you can beat them. We played a good game. We handled the press very well and they've always killed us with the press."

Foreman led the Lions with 14 points and Kastner and Girard had 13 each.

Antrim praised his entire starting lineup, including Wiloff, the budding freshman, who was remarkably polished. The coach also had good words for Kastner.

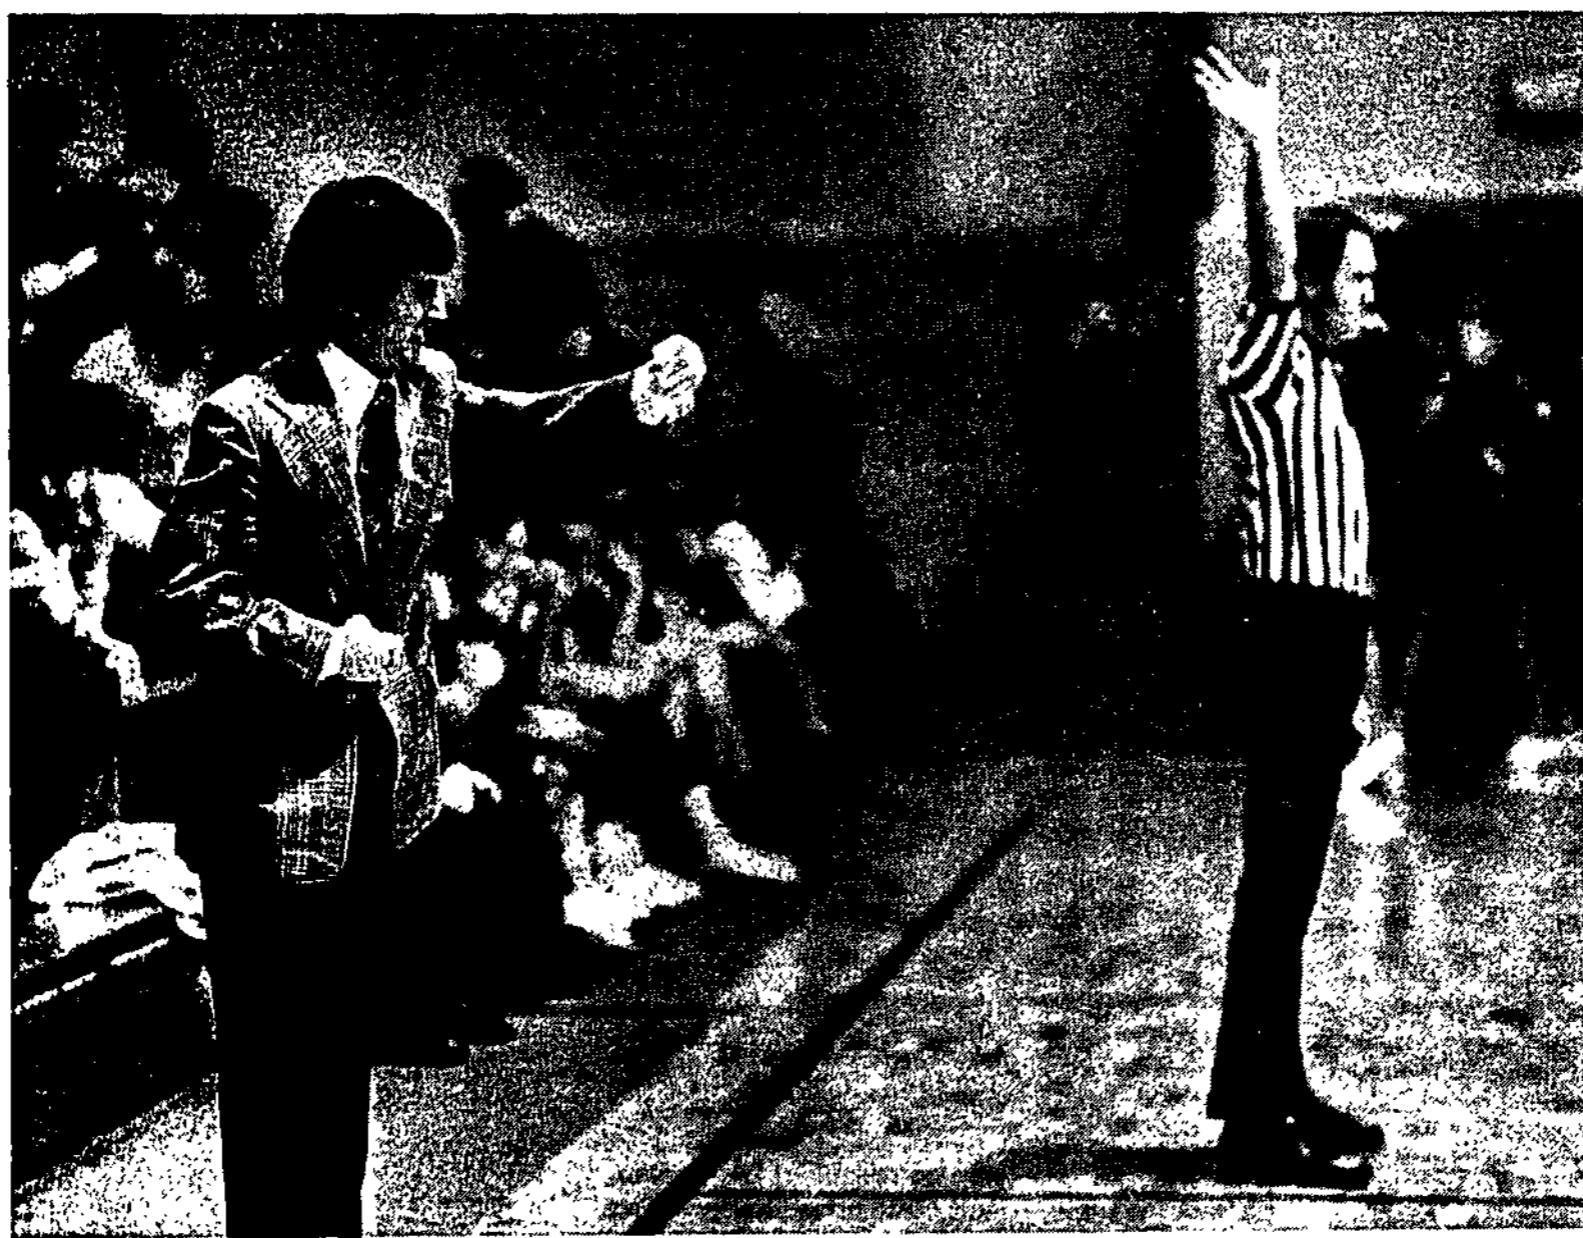

"Paul did a helluva job on McGovern when he was in there," Antrim said. "He outscored him by one and that kid McGovern has a lot of talent."

Kurland was suitably impressed with this year's edition of the Lions.

"They're a much more alert and aggressive team than last year," said the St. Pat coach. "They aren't standing around anymore. They make things happen. They came out in the second half and really came at us."

Kurland wasn't overly concerned with his team's lethargic play. "We had the poise to stay in there and fight even though they were making a run at us. We played well under pressure — sure, we fiddled around with the lead — but we had the poise to win it."

For that reason — and because Emmett McGovern won't always be sitting on the bench — the St. Patrick coach can be glad.

JUST DOING THEIR JOBS are referee Larry Pohlmann and St. Viator basketball coach Steve Antrim as the second half is set to get underway. St. Viator's Lions fought back from an intermission deficit of 11 points to catch and pass St. Patrick, but the Shamrocks revived for a 61-52 victory, their 10th in 12 contests this year. St. Viator's aggressive play against the highly rated Shamrocks earned praise from both coaches.

St. Francis falls 57-54 on Saturday

by MIKE GARBUS

You can tell St. Francis deSales is a big-city basketball team. In South Chicago, the game almost becomes a way of life on metropolitan playgrounds where it's hard to put a basketball down.

Halftime at St. Viator Saturday night was no exception. While the Lion contingent spent intermission in its dressing room with a slim 27-26 lead, the city kids were on the court getting in some extra shooting.

But judging by their production in the third quarter, it didn't help.

The Pioneers could muster but three field goals in the entire period, "the key," according to Lion coach Steve Antrim. Then his team held off a last-quarter rally for a 57-54 decision.

"But, you have to give deSales credit, they're a scrappy team," admitted Antrim after the final horn.

That scrap that has netted the Pioneers one-point victories over Notre Dame and Holy Cross this season was characterized by the first half play of guards Rodney Brown and Tim Jendra, who teamed for 19 of their club's first-half points. Their play, and the Lions' "not getting back on defense" in Antrim's words, saw the hosts outscored 19-14 in the second stanza, prompting the Lion coach to make a change in his offensive pattern for the third quarter.

"deSales has beaten some pretty good people," the head mentor began. "They play a sinking zone and try to make you shoot from the outside."

Temporarily forsaking his first-half offense that was doing a lot of just that, Antrim sent frontliners Bill Foreman, Glenn Girard and freshman Paul Wiloff inside and the trio responded by account-

Oak Park wins again in gymnastics invite

Huskies defend with a 140.66; Host Arlington takes 3rd place

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

It may be a trifle premature to go overboard and start calling the Arlington Gymnastics Invitational the Oak Park Gymnastics Invitational, but in the two years of the tournament existence the Huskies have found the Cardinal apparatus much to their liking.

They won the inaugural last year and returned to impressively defend their title against seven upstarts Saturday night, with a 140.66 total. And they did it despite a brilliant effort by Niles West's Bart Conner, who almost succeeded in winning the team title all by himself. Niles West finished second with 138.90.

The three area teams, Prospect, Rolling Meadows and the host Cardinals, fared well with Arlington third, the Knights taking fifth (124.68) and the Mustangs sixth (117.06).

Arlington coach Tom Chapman saw third place as the highest his team could aspire to prior to the meet and only then with an exceptional performance from his injured crew.

Chapman got the performances he needed and the Cardinals' 131.49 topped York by .38 of a point for third place.

Arlington's strongest event was the side horse where its 22.05 team total was second only to Oak Park's 23.25. Gordon Schmidt led the Cardinals on the event with an 8.1, good enough for a fourth place ribbon. Ken Hogrefe added a 7.30 and Drew Parley 6.65.

The side horse was won by Conner with 8.6. Perhaps predictably, Conner also won the still rings (8.4), high bar (9.2) and all-around (8.1). He slipped to third in free exercise (7.9) and didn't place on the parallel bars.

No other individual came close to dominating the proceedings as Conner but York's trampolinists had that event all to themselves. Al Thomas led off with a 7.85 which was good enough for fifth and was followed by Ron Stefani who took second with an 8.4 and Gary Rust, who won the event with 8.0.

Rich Bradley, from Oak Park, stuck into the tramp rankings with a third place (8.15) to go along with a first place in free ex. Joe Czyzewicz won the other Oak Park event title on P-bars with an 8.45.

Although no area gymnasts won any event titles there were several ribbons collected. Doug Zahour and Kurt Cederberg, of Prospect, took a fifth on free ex (7.55), and third on P-Bars (8.35) respectively. Dave Gurka's 8.25 won second place on side horse, Keith Liszewski took a third on high bar (8.6) and Jim Losito captured fourth on tramp 8.1, all for Rolling Meadows.

Champagne is ready for bowling tourney

"Champagne is ready, come and get it!"

Those were the words of Bill Noel of Armanett's Wine Cellar in Rolling Meadows this week as he referred to the prizes for Paddock Publications' Champagne Tourney for mixed bowling leagues.

Tourney founder Bob Paddock immediately scheduled a vehicle to pick up the 260 splits of champagne which will be given to the 260 expected keglers in the event at Hoffman Lanes Saturday night, Jan. 21.

In addition to the champagne, each of the bowlers will also receive an official tourney patch, and a chance at the prize money:

2nd Place $136.07 (23%)
3rd Place $94.66 (16%)
4th Place $76.91 (13%)
5th Place $59.15 (10%)
6th Place $47.33 (8%)
High Game Out of the Money (Actual) $10.00.

In addition, each team will receive a free color picture.

Deadline for entries in both the mixed league tournament and women's league events is this Saturday, Jan. 21.

Teams from just over 200 leagues have entered the three tournaments thus far, including 83 for the men's event Jan. 19 at River Band; and 39 in the mixed and 42 in the women's Jan. 25-26 at Hoffman Lanes.

FROM ON HIGH. St. Viator's Paul Kastner (10) seems to drop out of the sky to guard Mark Nichol of St. Patrick. Kastner played well on defense and contributed 13 points Friday, but the Lions fell, 61-52. Two free throws by Nichol near the end helped seal the win for the Shamrocks.

Meadows, Elk Grove gain wins outside conference

Rolling Meadows unravelled Fenton's 2-1-2 full-court zone press with a 23-point onslaught in the second period and then held off a late Bison surge to ring up a 65-60 non-conference triumph in Benetaville Friday night.

While the Mustangs were galloping effortlessly through the ineffective Fenton press, Meadows' defense was never better in limiting the Bison to just eight points in the decisive period.

But a 33-19 Mustang bulge at halftime evaporated to just two points late in the fourth quarter as Meadows encouraged Fenton's flurry by missing two one-and-one opportunities from the free throw line.

"We tried to freeze the ball with about three minutes left," Meadows' head scoring with 21 points, was the chief recipient of pin-point passing during the second-period surge.

The 6-foot-forward was positioned at the mid-court stripe during the press-breaking strategy and after helping with the inbounds pass, broke for the bucket where his teammates fed him consistently for easy layups.

But Fenton was the aggressor in the second half, controlling the boards and setting up hot-handed Mike Geary who obliged by cashing 25 points to lead all scorers.

While shooting 45 per cent from the field, Meadows was hampered by first-period turnovers that Arneson blamed chiefly on a new basketball that was employed in the opening tip.

"The thing was so slick, that both teams had trouble passing and dribbling. We called a couple timeouts in the beginning just to rub resin on the ball."

The Mustangs committed 10 of their 24 violations in the opening eight minutes as Fenton jumped on top, 11-10. But an early edge in rebounding, specifically on the offensive end, where Meadows collected 13 of their 35 boards, set up the second period explosion.

Steady John Hogan picked up the winner's scoring slack during the second half while finishing with 18 points, but Arneson was especially pleased with the performance by 6-5 junior Bill Wiesen who contributed six points and a team-leading nine rebounds in his first start.

"We're pushing the new-year theme to our players," Arneson said, "and our most immediate goal is reaching .500. We're on our way."

SOPH LEADS GRENADIERS

The X-rays of the ankle Joe Parmentier injured in the Edwardsville Holiday Tournament came up negative and Parmentier came up shooting with 19 points to lead Elk Grove to a 64-52 non-league win over Crown Saturday night.

The scrappy sophomore fired in seven field goals and five free throws to edge Greg Kelley, who had 18, for scoring honors.

More importantly, Parmentier came off the bench late in the fourth quarter to put down a mild Crown uprising. The Vikings cut Grove's lead to six at 54-48 and then had the added advantage of fouling out Jeff Smith, the Grenadiers' 6-6 forward.

Crown was unable to convert the free throws after the foul and Elk Grove wasted little time slamming the door on the Vikings.

Dave Hornacek muscled inside for one layup and Parmentier's and Kelley's defense forced a steal by Steve Carson. The Grenadiers went into a stall, forcing Crown to foul and after Kelley hit both ends of a one-and-one to put the lead back at 10, Parmentier stole the ball right back.

"I had heard a lot of things about this Crown team," Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier said, "but they moved the ball very well against us."

"We pride ourselves on our defense here and they were able to move the ball around us. I was a little surprised."

It was Elk Grove's defense and patient offense that overcame a 10 rebounds edge Crown had on the boards. The Vikings committed 11 more turnovers than the Grenadiers and only one of 25 Elk Grove baskets came off the fast break.

"We start three guards and try to put pressure out front," Parmentier said. "We're also able to play a lot of kids and get a lot of different looks and sizes in there."

All the different looks and sizes boosted Elk Grove's overall record to 8-4.

Defensive switch helps powerful Maine South coast past Warriors

by MIKE GARBUS

Maine South's head coach Guitman Sullins added a new wrinkle to his team's defense and got some effective results — in a hurry.

Shifting their usual 1-3-1 zone alignment at the opening horn for a pressing man-to-man, the Hawks hurried host Maine West's offense out of its characteristically disciplined style enroute to a 71-53 conference triumph.

The victory leaves the Hawks and Niles West, both with 4-0 league marks, deadlocked atop the Central Suburban League South. And the win, which hikes Maine South's over-all mark to 9-1, certainly won't hurt their third place state ranking.

"We tried to control the game more than we did and minimize mistakes," Warrior mentor Gaston Freeman explained after the loss. "Our (Sullins') press was effective and it made us move faster."

The visitors used their superior height advantage to win the battle of the boards 31-23 with 6-foot-8 pivotman Pete Boesen corraling 18 himself to complement a 21-point performance. The senior All-State candidate with basketball skills that would make any college scout drool, started slowly, notching but four of his team's 17 first quarter points, those four being half of Maine West's total output in the period, but it helped spur his club on to a lead that was never headed.

Foul trouble that tested Freeman's bench strength in the opening round continued into the second while Boesen began to make his presence felt as he honed a game-long combination of inside conversions and fine perimeter shooting.

But the Warriors' 6-3 senior guard Glen Heiden, who didn't seem to be bothered by South's new look defense, continued a display of long-range marksmanship he began in the first quarter that was to earn him a share of the contest's high-scoring honors with Boesen.

Buoyed by Heiden who hit 10 of 18 shots in the game, and aided by 10 first-half points from forward Paul Dick who finished with 17, West pulled to within five on sophomore Bob Zuccarini's drive at the 7:15 mark, but that was as close as the Warriors would get as another bucket by the Hawks sent them into intermission en top 32-25.

Returning to the floor with their familiar zone defense that was to yield their harried opponents just 11 points in the third stanza, South's front line of Boesen, 6-7 John Kuntz, 6-3 Mike Sellergren and 6-6 Mike Chrzan went to work inside with the help of assists from guard Joe Pogone who also chipped in two jumpers off the run in rocketing his team's advantage to 49-38 with a stanza remaining. Sullins later said this was Pogone's "worst game of the year."

The Hawks padded their margin with 22 final quarter tallies, including six of their 15 team free throws. It didn't help the Warriors when 6-5 center John Clark, shut out from the floor for the evening, fouled out with 5:36 remaining after spending much of the second half on the bench in foul trouble.

"Our ball club played well," Freeman said of his charges, now with a 2-2 slate in loop action. "But they were too big."

Relating his reason for installing the man-to-man defense, Sullins explained, "Maine West is a disciplined team that plays for the good shot. We wanted to take away their game."

He lauded his defense with the understatement, "We played them tough," noting that either Sellergren, with his defense, or Chrzan make Maine South a team with six players that could start.

Dispelling any idea of a Boesen-oriented offense, Sullins emphasized, "We try to fast break, but if there is no fast, he's in our pattern."

"We were balanced," he added, adhering to his team's 53 per cent shooting and double-figure efforts turned in by Chrzan (16), Sellergren (12) and 10 by Kuntz before he fouled out with 53 seconds left in the game. Kuntz, according to his coach, "is coming."

For a state-ranked team that lost four starters through graduation, Maine South may already be here.

KEEP AWAY looks like the name of the game, at least for Maine South's Pete Boesen during the Hawks' 71-53 triumph over Maine West Friday night. In reality, Boesen snared 19 rebounds in the game to go along with a 21 point scoring effort.

This is no hand to be forgotten

Oswald: "One thing a really great player needs is the so-called 'feel' of the table. He will even go far and away against normal percentages because he suspects something abnormal."

Jim: "Here is a hand that you should recall. You were captain of the North American team that won the world's championship in 1970 and 1971. I was a member of the team and this little gem was played by my partner Bobby Wolff."

Oswald: "East won the first trick with the ace of clubs and led back the deuce of spades. West rose with the ace; cashed the king of clubs and then led back a spade. Right?"

Jim: "Yes! Then Bobby put on his thinking cap and decided that West was acting like a man who expected a trump trick. So Bobby won the spade with the queen and led the jack of hearts. West covered."

Oswald: "Then Bobby thought some more and decided that West also held the nine. So he came back to his hand with the ace of diamonds, led the eight of trumps, let it ride, cashed dummy's ten, ruffed a good diamond to get back to his hand, cashed his ace of trumps to pick up the nine and claimed his contract."

CTA adds reduced-fare route to serve commuters from Loop

A new, reduced-fare bus route has been added by the Chicago Transit Authority to serve commuters boarding at the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in Chicago.

The new route No. 157, operates from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and directly serves the Prudential Building, Two Illinois Center, Wrigley Building, Tribune Tower, John Hancock Center and many Michigan Avenue offices.

The bus goes east on Washington Street to Michigan, Avenue offices.

The bus goes east on Washington Street to Michigan, north on Michigan to Ohio Street, east on Ohio to Fairbanks Court, and on to DeWitt and Chestnut streets via Chicago Avenue, Seneca Street, Delaware Street and DeWitt.

The 35-cent fare is for all passengers boarding or getting off before Ohio Street. Beyond Ohio the fare is 45 cents.

The return bus loads at Chestnut Street and Lake Shore Drive. It travels south on Lake Shore Drive, west on Pearson Street, south on Seneca, east on Chicago, south on Fairbanks Court, west on Ontario, south on Michigan Avenue, west on Randolph Street and south on Clinton at the C&NW terminal. The Wacker (158) buses will operate as usual.

Anti-corruption discussion

A member of the U.S. Attorney's office, a reporter, a local mayor and the executive director of the Better Government Assn. will speak at an anticorruption seminar Friday at Harper College in Palatine.

The 7 to 10 p.m. seminar, called "Fighting Out Corruption," is free to the public. Anton Valukas, deputy chief of the special investigation division of the U.S. Attorney's Office, will describe how citizens can determine the honesty of their elected officials. Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates village president, will answer the question, "Do our local officials always respond to the best interests of their constituents?"

Also on the agenda are William Moon, reporter for the Chicago Daily News, and J. Terrence Brunner of the BGA, who will explain how his organization functions. The seminar will be at the Harper student center, Algonquin and Roselle roads.

Children's rights talk

The question of children's rights will be discussed at a workshop sponsored by Harper College at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Tuition is $5 per person and $2 for a spouse.

Members of the panel will be Allan Yamakawa, director of Educational Services, Chicago Tribune; Michelle Weber, coordinator for the gifted and talented at the Barrington Middle School; Jean Fisher, coordinator of community development, The Bridge, and Leah Cummins, former High School Dist. 214 board member.

For further information call 397-3000, ext. 248 or 270.

Village board aspirant seeks building job

by JOE FRANZ

Kenneth R. Brady, a candidate for the Wheeling Village Board in the April election, has applied for the post of village building director. The Herald has learned.

Village Mgr. George Passolt confirmed that Brady is among 15 persons who have applied for the post which has been vacant for almost a year. Brady last week was slated by the Wheeling Representative Party, to run for one of the four open seats on the village board.

Brady, 31, of 82 Brian Ln., a self-employed carpenter and contractor, has been unavailable for comment on his candidacy or possible appointment as building director for more than 5 days.

PASSOLT SAID HE still is interviewing applicants for the post and is not sure who will be hired. He did say, however, that Brady's village board candidacy could present complications.

"I would say he would obviously have to make up his mind which he wanted because he couldn't be both building director and trustee," Passolt said. "But at this time I'm not going to concern myself with this. He is one of the applicants and that's all."

The manager said Brady applied for the job in September or October. "He may have decided to run for the village board because he thinks he's no longer in the running for the job," he said.

"He may have come to that conclusion because it's been so long since I interviewed him," Passolt continued. "But that is not the case because I have not made a decision on anyone yet."

THE BUILDING director's post was vacated by William Bleber last February after he was indicted by a federal grand jury. Bleber took leave of absence, but later resigned after pleading guilty to extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury and filing a false income tax return.

Since April, Robert Kaminski, an electrical inspector, has been serving as acting building director. He will assume his former duties when a new director is hired.

In addition to Brady, other applicants for the job include Plan Commission Chairman Herbert Lorts and Electrical Comm. A. M. Mansukhani.

WRP is the second party in Wheeling to announce a slate of candidates for the April 15 village board election. Besides Brady, the WRP slate consists of zoning board member Neil Brant, 45, of 63 Birch Tr.; Robert E. Clark, 49, of 519 Isa Dr., and Roger Powers, 29, of 1509 Clearwater Ln.

THE HERALD disclosed Friday that Trustee William Helm, whose Citizens Action Program disavowed any intention of fielding a slate in the next election, played a key role in choosing candidates for WRP, the village's newest political party.

The other party to slate candidates for the village board is the Wheeling Improvement Party. The WHIP ticket consists of Gilbert Monoson, 29, of 42 Berkshiro Dr.; Otis (Skip) Hedlund, 40, of 125 Berkshire Dr.; Charles Kerr, 51, of 20 Berkshire Dr., and John Cole, 42, of 130 Berkshire Dr.

A citizens' group in Wheeling will keep up its campaign for lower speed limits on Old McHenry Road despite continued resistance from the State of Illinois.

The group, Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposing Slaughter Elimination (CORPSE) is working to get the speed limit reduced from 50 to 40 m.p.h.

The organization is also working to get traffic signals installed at several intersections along the road.

Karen Williams, chairman of CORPSE, said the speed limit should be reduced because of the recent development along the road. She said about 20 per cent of Wheeling's population is concentrated along the road, creating heavier traffic than in the past and making the present speed limit unsafe.

ROY FONDA, north area traffic engineer for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said last week the state has monitored traffic along the road several times in the last year and cannot justify lowering the speed limit below 50 m.p.h.

Until now, the village allowed the games in taverns, bowling alleys and other establishments, but has not allowed a business to operate solely for that purpose. The village board several weeks ago voted 5-1 to direct the village attorney to change the zoning regulations to permit the amusement centers.

Ronald Davison, 19, of 263 Wayne Pl., Wheeling, has proposed the game center, saying they are popular with teen-agers and are being opened throughout the country.

The village board meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

fatalities and all were on McHenry Road. "My God, how many people have to be killed before they do something?" she said.

She said her group plans to meet with village officials later this month to discuss possible ways of persuading the state to further reduce the speed limit. She said her group is attempting to obtain accident statistics from the village to show that a lower speed limit is justified.

IN THE MEANTIME, Mrs. Williams said her group will continue to work to get motorists to reduce their speed voluntarily. The group hopes the voluntary speed reductions will show up on future state traffic surveys.

"Since CORPSE was started, it's amazing how many people have slowed down on that crazy road," she said. "People aren't whizzing up and down there like they used to."

As a result of past traffic surveys, Fonda said the state plans to install traffic signals at two locations along McHenry Road this year. The first signal will be placed at Arlington Heights Road and the second at Elmhurst Road.

Members of CORPSE said they would like to see the signals installed sooner than planned and also want an additional traffic light installed at McHenry and Aptakisic roads.

The school bell beckons thousands of youngsters back to classrooms today as winter vacation ends.

Board reviews town hall plans

The Arlington Heights Village Board will review plans tonight for a new town hall for Wheeling Township at 1620 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Township officials are asking the village to rezone the site from single family to office use. The rezoning is opposed by several homeowners who live near the proposed site just north of Maude Avenue and by Village Planner Joe Kesler.

Kesler says the rezoning conflicts with the village's Arlington Heights Road study which recommended that office zoning not be extended any further south along north Arlington Heights Road.

On Dec. 11, the Arlington Heights Plan Commission voted 4-3 to recommend approval of the rezoning.

Township officials say they need the new building in order to have more room for an expanded program of social services, including elderly assistance.

Tonight's village board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

A citizens' group in Wheeling will keep up its campaign for lower speed limits on Old McHenry Road despite continued resistance from the State of Illinois.

The group, Citizens of Old McHenry Road Proposing Slaughter Elimination (CORPSE) is working to get the speed limit reduced from 50 to 40 m.p.h.

The organization is also working to get traffic signals installed at several intersections along the road.

Suburbs wary of Pikarsky as RTA chief

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

Pikarsky plans to meet this skepticism with a concentrated effort to improve mass transportation in the suburbs, he said two hours after his appointment was approved Friday.

The RTA board approved Pikarsky's nomination by a 6-to-2 vote when two suburban board members who earlier opposed him switched their votes. A salary has not been established, but it is expected to be $80,000 to $100,000 a year.

John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president who reluctantly backed the RTA referendum in March, said of the appointment, "I think it's absolutely imperative that they get off the dime and move ahead. I don't believe Pikarsky is an acceptable chairman in large part because of his very close association with Mayor Daley."

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong. If he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

Now RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky is tackling his biggest obstacle — the suburbs — with promises of equal consideration with Chicago and development of a suburban service division in the RTA structure.

"While the City of Chicago is the largest governmental subdivision of this area, the entire suburban area is equally as important in the terms of the need to maintain, improve and expand public transportation as a necessary public service," he said.

"All capabilities of the RTA, including funding and revenues, must be utilized in accordance with this cardinal principle of treating the Chicago area as a whole, with full realization that the entire area is more important than any single part.

"We cannot permit any portion of the area to be favored at the expense of the others. We could not, for instance, adopt policies that would penalize suburban service to the benefit of transit service in Chicago," he said.

Pikarsky said one of his first tasks will be to fulfill his promise to equalize fares on suburban bus and commuter railroad systems.

To ensure efficient bus service in the suburban areas, he said, he will establish the suburban service unit and propose that the director of the division be selected by the suburban members of the RTA board.

The committee, which opposed the RTA referendum, had said the CTA would gain control of the RTA and that 78 per cent of the money would go to the CTA, although only 31 per cent of the income would come from Chicago residents.

A new amendment to the RTA law requires money raised by RTA taxes in a county to be spent in that county, but Skinner says that guarantee is insignificant. "All the guarantees are that

Temporary RTA chairman Joseph Tectson would not comment at length on why suburban board members D. Daniel Baldwin and Richard Newland swung to Pikarsky, but he said, "The voting is over. Government runs by the rule of the majority and I'm prepared to move on."

Area leaders back plan for stadium at Arlington Park

By KURT BAER

Civic and community leaders generally have reacted positively to news that Madison Square Garden Corp. may plan a new football stadium for the Chicago Bears at Arlington Park Race Track.

"I would be very interested in listening to anything they have to say about it. I think it has some great possibilities. But I really want to take a good look at what they're talking about, particularly the economic feasibility," said Village Pres. Ralph H. Clarbour of Arlington Heights.

Alan Cohen, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., last week said the company is studying the economic feasibility of building a major new sports stadium at Arlington Park, which it owns.

Cohen said he has talked about the site with Bears owner George Halas who has not ruled it out.

"I WOULD LIKE to see it happen, but I don't think it will," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. "I'll believe it when I see it. I don't think Mayor Daley will let the team out of Chicago."

Daley was reported to have ordered plans drawn for a new stadium on the Soldier Field site in Chicago, presumably for the Bears, but it is not known how this move would affect arena plans at Arlington Park.

Jones said he would rather see a stadium built at the track than the 5,000-unit high-rise apartment housing project that has been proposed for 100 acres.

Richard Goedke, president of the Westgate Civic Assn., which represents 1,000 Arlington Heights homeowners east of Wilke Road, also said a stadium probably would be more acceptable than the housing development.

"Let's face it, the land at the race track has to be developed one way or another. We're not opposed to development per se, but we are concerned about how it is done," Goedke said Friday.

Without having had the opportunity to discuss the idea with Westgate association members, Goedke said he "couldn't see how they'd oppose it too much. We'd certainly hate to see that residential development go in."

ROLLING MEADOWS officials also reacted with general favor to the stadium idea.

"It wouldn't have any more impact than the racing season, and maybe not as much. Racing goes six days a week. If they start with night football, maybe that would have some effect," said City Mgr. James Watson.

Ald. Merrill Wuerch, 1st, said traffic and noise would be the two obvious impacts on the city. Ald. Thomas Waldron, 2nd, said the race track would be "an ideal place" for the Bears to play.

"I think it would be good for the area — a lot better than those apartments. Traffic could be channelled right out so we'd hardly notice it," Waldron said.

ONE SOURCE OF opposition to the stadium plans, if they are ever drawn, may come from the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine north of the race track.

"I doubt very much that the subdivision would support the development of a sports complex at the race track. We have been opposed to all other development there just because of the effects it would have on our neighborhood," said Evalina Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Assn.

The association plans to discuss the possible stadium plan at its next meeting Jan. 14, she said.

Clarbour said a sports stadium could be "far more compatible use of the race track land than putting 15,000 people on it to live."

"At the time the race track was brought into the village that (annexation) agreement left them the option to do a number of things with the land. And the idea was that they would do a number of things," he said.

BUT THE ECONOMIC reality of a stadium, especially if it were used solely by the Bears, is one of the biggest doubts about the plan, said Clarbour. At the same time if it were not for an established sports team like the Bears being involved, he said he would not be interested at all.

"A team like the Bears has a long-term business interest, and, as a business venture, is going to consider the possibility of success," he said.

As to the likelihood of Arlington Heights becoming involved in the financing of an Arlington Park stadium, Clarbour said, "I don't know of any of these facilities that have been built that don't have some public financing."

He said the village might consider backing a revenue bond issue for the stadium that would be paid off entirely by stadium income. But he discounted any general obligation bond issue for the project.

"If the thing flunked with general obligation bonds then the taxpayer is stuck. And I think the taxpayer is stuck enough without having to worry about football stadiums or baseball parks," he said.

2 teens charged with at least 13 burglaries

Two teen-agers arrested by Mount Prospect police are believed responsible for at least 13 burglaries in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights.

The teen-agers, a boy and girl both 14 years old, were arrested Friday afternoon at the Olde Neighborhood Sandwich Shop, Wohl Road and Euclid Avenue, by Mount Prospect Patrolman Thomas Benz after Sheriff's Police sent out a radio dispatch for two burglary suspects whose descriptions matched the arrested pair.

Police said the boy and girl were seen leaving a burglarized home at 6 Patricia Ln., Prospect Heights.

Three watches and a collector's coin were found on the boy when he was arrested, police said. These items were later identified as having been stolen between 1:15 and 3:45 p.m. Friday from the home of Diane DiCicco, 1612 Barberly Ln., Mount Prospect.

The DiCicco burglary was the 11th reported in the northeast section of Mount Prospect during a seven-day period that began Dec. 28. Taken was $160 and jewelry valued at $373. A 10th burglary, which occurred Thursday night at the Lydia Latowicz home, 1903 Santeet Ln., but in which nothing was taken, was reported Friday.

No information was available on the location of six Arlington Heights burglaries which police have linked to the two teen-agers.

Crime increase here far below national average

by LUISA GINNETTI

Preliminary figures compiled by the Des Plaines Police Dept. show the city crime rate increased by less than 10 per cent in 1974 substantially less than the nationwide suburban nine-month average of 20 per cent.

Although Federal Bureau of Investigation statistics released last week include national figures for only the first nine months of the year, Des Plaines police calculated their statistics based on preliminary figures for the entire year.

Lt. Mike Clark, head of the department's records division, said that according to his calculations the city experienced its biggest increase in the number of burglaries, which jumped by about 13 per cent from 1973.

Clark said a significant increase in the number of auto thefts also was reported in 1974, up about 15 per cent from the 1973 figure.

CLARK CALLED the increases in these two categories disturbing and said the rise in the number of burglaries could be attributed to several large thefts from office complexes. Increases in residential burglaries also contributed to the rise, Clark said.

"The jump in burglaries is particularly disturbing because we had a leveling off

A group of young people from St. Zachary's Church in Des Plaines is proving that teenagers can be their own best organizers.

The students are members of the church's youth group and meet every Monday to plan recreational and service activities for themselves. The club includes more than 100 high school-age students from St. Zachary's parish and others who are not members of the church.

Ed Iwanski, 15, president of the club, said the group has been in existence for about four years, but started to become more active during the last few months.

IWANSKI, a sophomore at St. Vincents High School, said the group alternates activities each Monday, with one week devoted to sports activities such as basketball and volleyball and the following week devoted to an organized meeting to discuss ideas for future activities.

Both meetings are well attended, but the sports session seems to draw more attendance. The club conducts its meetings at Friendship Junior High where a gymnasium is available.

Iwanski said the group only started meeting at the junior high since the fall. Before that time the club played in the church parking lot but moved to the school when darkness prevented outdoor activities.

Some of the group's recent activities have included horseback riding outings, a bike trip through the forest preserve, roller skating and a fund-raising car wash. The club is currently planning a ski trip later this month.

In lieu of a Christmas party this year, club members decided to take a trip to the Schwab Rehabilitation Center in Chicago and the Fairfax Nursing Home in Berwyn for Christmas caroling shows.

IWANSKI SAID he became an officer in the club almost by accident. "I guess I opened my mouth too much with ideas and before I knew it I was nominated to be president."

Other officers in the club include Sue Porto, a sophomore at Forest View High School who is club secretary, and Robert Tesmer, a freshman at Forest View who is club treasurer.

The club has two adult advisers, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maniack. The couple do not interfere with club activities, Iwanski said, but attend meetings to act as supervisors and advisers.

Iwanski said he believes most members of the club enjoy being part of it because it has given them an opportunity to meet other students. "Because the club is open to anyone I've met a lot of kids I didn't know before and the club has really grown through word of mouth," Iwanski said.

IWANSKI SAID he would like to write a constitution to govern the club. The document would set down certain policies regarding membership, which is limited to high school students, and attendance requirements.

The club president said he would also be interested in working to get other local youth groups started and work with them in a type of association. Iwanski said he thinks local youth groups could meet periodically for special functions like a dance or some type of sports competition.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Ed Iwanski, testified to her son's enthusiasm for the club. "He's involved in activities at school but when it comes to Monday night he's always at the meetings and I can't keep him home."

School boundary change hearing set for Tuesday

The local scene

Last week to sign up

This is the last week to register for winter programs through the Maine-Niles Assn. of Recreation for the Handicapped, Rte. 1, Niles.

The boundary changes would affect Nathanson School, Potter and Church streets; Stevenson School, 9009 Capitol Dr.; Mark Twain School, 9401 Hamlin Ave.; all of Des Plaines, and Ballard School.

The proposal, developed by the board at its Dec. 17 meeting, is designed to alleviate crowded conditions at Nathanson School, where 670 youngsters attend classes in a building designed for 500. It is the only district school using mobile units as regular classrooms.

The board's plan calls for administrative offices at Ballard School to be converted into classroom space. School boundary lines would be shifted to distribute students more evenly among the four buildings. A new administrative center is proposed on a district-owned site at Dte Road north of Golf Road.

Armed robber takes $100 from gas station

Des Plaines police are investigating an armed robbery that occurred late Thursday at the C & D Texaco Station, 710 N. Wolf Rd.

Police said the robbery occurred while an attendant was closing the station. He was about to enter the office when a man with a gun standing in front of the office door demanded the attendant give him money, police said. The man took an estimated $100 in bills and coins, police said.

Greek land may become golf course

by JILL BETTNER

A feasibility study will be conducted next summer as the first step in researching the possibility of turning vacant land along Salt Creek in Elk Grove Village into a nine-hole golf course.

Elk Grove Park Board Pres. Lew Smith last month suggested the idea of building the golf course on about 40 acres along the creek between Clearmont Drive and Walnut Lane. The land is jointly owned by the park district and the village.

The Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs will conduct a free study on the feasibility of the park district's selling various kinds of bonds to finance the project sometime late next summer, said Jack Claes, a superintendent of parks and recreation. The state agency also will provide the park district with estimates of the amount of annual revenue that could be expected from operating the proposed golf course.

Claes said he plans to talk to officials of other area park districts that own golf courses in the next several months to obtain information the Dept. of Local Government Affairs will need for the study. Now, he said, it is impossible to estimate the cost of building a local golf course.

Village opens blood program with deficit

Elk Grove Village is entering 1975's Community Blood Replacement Program 80 pints short of its 104 blood replacement goal.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said 124 donors have volunteered for the first blood drive for 1975 on Jan. 18.

"The first 80 pints drawn will have to be counted toward last year's donations," she said. Instead of the 900 pints needed, only 820 were donated.

The Jan. 18 blood drive will be from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the fire department building, Blesterfield Road and Wellington Avenue.

PROSPECTIVE donors may contact Mrs. Vanderweel at 430-3900 for an appointment or further information about the program.

Mrs. Vanderweel said new donor qualifications established recently by the American Assn. of Blood Banks will make hundreds of persons who were formally not eligible now able to donate blood.

Proposed for Arlington Park property

Area leaders back plan for stadium

by KURT BAER

Civic and community leaders generally have reacted positively to news that Madison Square Garden Corp. may plan a new football stadium for the Chicago Bears at Arlington Park Race Track.

"I would be very interested in listening to anything they have to say about it. I think it has some great possibilities. But I really want to take a good look at what they're talking about, particularly the economic feasibility," said Village Pres. Ralph H. Clarbour of Arlington Heights.

Alan Cohen, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., last week said the company is studying the economic feasibility of building a major new sports stadium at Arlington Park, which it owns. Cohen said he has talked about the site with Bears owner George Halas who has not ruled it out.

"I WOULD LIKE to see it happen, but I don't think it will," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. "I'll believe it when I see it. I don't think Mayor Daley will let the team out of Chicago."

Daley was reported to have ordered plans drawn for a new stadium on the Soldier Field site in Chicago, presumably for the Bears, but it is not known how this move would affect arena plans at Arlington Park.

Jones said he would rather see a stadium built at the track than the 5,000-unit high-rise apartment housing project that has been proposed for 190 acres.

Richard Goedke, president of the Westgate Civic Assn. that represents 1,000 Arlington Heights homeowners east of Wilke Road, also said a stadium probably would be more acceptable than the housing development.

"Let's face it, the land at the race track has to be developed one way or another. We're not opposed to development per se, but we are concerned about how it is done," Goedke said Friday.

Without having had the opportunity to discuss the idea with Westgate association members, Goedke said he "couldn't see how they'd oppose it too much. We'd certainly hate to see that residential development go in."

ROLLING MEADOWS officials also reacted with general favor to the stadium idea.

"It wouldn't have any more impact than the racing season, and maybe not

Suburbs wary of Pikarsky as RTA chief

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

Pikarsky plans to meet this skepticism with a concentrated effort to improve mass transportation in the suburbs, he said two hours after his appointment was approved Friday.

The RTA board approved Pikarsky's nomination by a 6-to-2 vote when two suburban board members who earlier opposed him switched their votes. A salary has not been established, but it is expected to be $80,000 to $100,000 a year.

John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president who reluctantly backed the RTA referendum in March, said of the appointment, "I think it's absolutely imperative that they get off the dime and move ahead. I don't believe Pikarsky is an acceptable chairman in large part because of his very close association with Mayor Daley."

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong. If he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates objects more to the

Pikarsky pledges suburbs to get equal consideration

Now RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky is tackling his biggest obstacle — the suburbs — with promises of equal consideration with Chicago and development of a suburban service division in the RTA structure.

"While the City of Chicago is the largest governmental subdivision of this area, the entire suburban area is equally RTA law than to Pikarsky. "That law was badly written and is still badly written. It does not provide for checks and balances," she said.

"I still think it would be best to bring in someone brand new, with no political ties. There will be bitterness, and that may prevent the next thing we will need — a metropolitan water authority. We've probably taken a short-term look and peace at any cost," she said.

"I have nothing against Mr. Pikarsky, but who will take over the reins of the

as important in the terms of the need to maintain, improve and expand public transportation as a necessary public service," he said.

"All capabilities of the RTA, including funding and revenues, must be utilized in accordance with this cardinal principle of treating the Chicago area as a whole,

Pikarsky said one of his first tasks

mayors are realized, I will be disappointed. I think he'll be fair and square. I'm not going to be unhappy at all, but Mr. Pikarsky will have to justify his existence."

WOODS SUMMARIZED the feeling of many suburban mayors and elected officials. "The suburbs can be pardoned for their skepticism," he said.

State Rep. Calvin Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, was outraged with the appointment. "I'm anxious to see if the rest of the KNOW RTA Committee predictions will be fulfilled," he said.

The committee, which opposed the RTA referendum, had said the CTA would get control of the RTA and that 78 per cent of the money would go to the CTA, although only 31 per cent of the income would come from Chicago residents.

A new amendment to the RTA law requires money raised by RTA taxes in a county to be spent in that county, but Skinner says that guarantee is insignificant. "All the guarantees are that the CTA will make out like a bandit," he said.

Temporary RTA chairman Joseph Tector would not comment at length on why suburban board members D. Daniel Baldwin and Richard Newland swung to Pikarsky, but he said, "The voting is over. Government runs by the rule of the majority and I'm prepared to move on."

as much. Racing goes off six days a week. If they start with night football, maybe that would have some effect," said City Mgr. James Watson.

Ald Merrill Wuerch, 1st, said traffic and noise would be the two obvious impacts on the city. Ald. Thomas Waldron, 2nd, said the race track would be "an ideal place" for the Bears to play.

"I think it would be good for the area — a lot better than those apartments. Traffic could be channeled right out so we'd hardly notice it," Waldron said.

ONE SOURCE OF opposition to the stadium plans, if they are ever drawn, may come from the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine north of the race track.

"I doubt very much that the subdivision would support the development of a sports complex at the race track. We have been opposed to all other development there just because of the effects it would have on our neighborhood," said Evaline Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Assn.

The association plans to discuss the possible stadium plan at its next meeting Jan. 14, she said.

Clarbour said a sports stadium could be "far more compatible use of the race track land than putting 15,000 people on it to live."

"At the time the race track was brought into the village that (annexation) agreement left them the option to do a number of things with the land. And the idea was that they would do a number of things," he said.

BUT THE ECONOMIC reality of a stadium, especially if it were used solely by the Bears, is one of the biggest doubts about the plan, said Clarbour. At the same time if it were not for an established sports team like the Bears being involved, he said he would not be interested at all.

"A team like the Bears has a long-term business interest, and, as a business venture, is going to consider the possibility of success," he said.

As to the likelihood of Arlington Heights becoming involved in the financing of an Arlington Park stadium, Clarbour said, "I don't know of any of these facilities that have been built that don't have some public financing."

He said the village might consider backing a revenue bond issue for the stadium that would be paid off entirely by stadium income. But he discounted any general obligation bond issue for the project.

"If the thing flunked with general obligation bonds then the taxpayer is stuck. And I think the taxpayer is stuck enough without having to worry about football stadiums or baseball parks," he said.

2 teens arrested in series of burglaries in suburbs

Two teen-agers arrested by Mount Prospect police are believed responsible for at least 13 burglaries in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights.

The teen-agers, a boy and girl both 14 years old, were arrested Friday afternoon at the Olde Neighborhood Sandwich Shop, Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue, by Mount Prospect Patrolman Thomas Benz after Sheriff's Police sent out a radio dispatch for two burglary suspects whose descriptions matched the arrested pair.

Police said the boy and girl were seen leaving a burglarized home at 6 Patricia Ln., Prospect Heights.

Three watches and a collector's coin were found on the boy when he was arrested, police said. These items were later identified as having been stolen between 1:15 and 3:45 p.m. Friday from the home of Diane DiCicco, 1612 Barberay Ln., Mount Prospect.

The DiCicco burglary was the 11th reported in the northeast section of Mount Prospect during a seven-day period that began Dec. 28. Taken was $160 and jewelry valued at $373. A 10th burglary, which occurred Thursday night at the Lydia Latowicz home, 1303 Santeet Ln., but in which nothing was taken, was reported Friday.

Sally O'Brien likely SCOPP ticket leader

by PAT GERLACH

Sally O'Brien, 1401 Elmhurst Ln., is "most likely" to head the ticket as village president candidate of Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress, a source close to the party steering committee told The Herald.

Mrs. O'Brien refused to confirm or deny that she will run for village president on the SCOPP ticket. She is a member of the incumbent Schaumburg United Party.

"I am in no position to say I am even considering candidacy," she said, emphasizing that the SCOPP slate announcement has been planned for Saturday "immediately after" the 9:30 a.m. Coffee With the Council. Location for the meeting, at which the party platform also will be presented, has not been determined.

IF SLATED by SCOPP, Mrs. O'Brien would be challenging Trustee Raymond Kessell, selected at SUP's October convention as its presidential candidate. Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher has said he will not seek a fifth term.

Mrs. O'Brien openly campaigned for at least two SUP candidates before the convention, but it has been learned she was asked to resign as precinct manager after her husband, Timothy, was identified as a SCOPP leader.

O'Brien has said he became involved with the new political party "out of concern" for the village. In November, O'Brien told zoning board members that about 600 residents of Sheffield Park East signed petitions calling for a referendum to limit apartment development even though their homeowners' association refused to take a stand against a special election proposed by other Schaumburg homeowners' associations.

O'BRIEN SAID last week that: SUP's failure to meet the petition filing deadline for established political parties should not prevent it from fielding a slate. "I think it would be a shame if they (SUP) were unable to run a slate of candidates in the April election, but on the other hand, I have full confidence in their ability to solve minor problems," he said.

Village Clerk Sandy Carsello learned Thursday that SUP was in error in not filing petitions by the Dec. 28 deadline for established parties. She had been earlier advised by the Illinois Election Board that the party should file between Jan. 6 and Feb. 10, the filing period for independent candidates and local parties.

Michael Lovelle, director of the state election board, assumed partial blame for the error and has recommended SUP wait until after the Feb. 25 primary election date and call a meeting of its managing committee to appoint candidates. The appointed candidates will then be certified by the party to the village clerk and names will be placed on the ballot.

Mrs. Carsello is seeking her fourth term on the SUP ticket. Trustee candidates include Incumbent Edward G. Olson, Alan Larson, James Rogers and Nels Hornstrum.

Village to name new ZBA head by mid-January

A successor to Charles M. Ritz as chairman of the Hoffman Estates Zoning Board of Appeals is expected to be named by mid-January, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said Friday.

Ritz, appointed to head the ZBA in September following the resignation of long-time chairman Robert Valentino, submitted his resignation to the village board Dec. 9 to be effective Jan. 1. Ritz said he would continue to serve as chairman until a successor is named.

He also will continue to serve as a member of the board.

In submitting his resignation, Ritz said new responsibilities at his place of employment prompted his decision.

Mrs. Hayter said the board has not discussed the vacancy extensively, but added she has forwarded some recommendations.

"It is a high-priority matter," she said. "I would imagine that by the second board meeting of the month (Jan. 13) we will have come to a decision."

Commerce units may meet on union

The Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce will seek a joint meeting with the Greater Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry by the end of January again to discuss consolidating the two groups.

Art Kelter of Hoffman-Rosner Corp., the new president of the Hoffman Estates chamber, Friday said his group will attempt to arrange a joint meeting to resume discussions on a merger, an action that Kelter said his group still supports.

There apparently has been no agreement between the two groups on whether a merger could come about. Schaumburg Assn. Pres. Russell Larson of Union Oil Co. said Friday his group has never intended to actually merge with the Hoffman group but has invited the Hoffman group to become members of the Schaumburg group.

Larson added no response has come from the Hoffman Estates group.

"I think that will be the extent to which we will go," Larson said.

Burglars get $1,100 in measuring tools

Burglars took an estimated $1,100 worth of measuring instruments from the MTI Corp., 2025 Tonno Rd., Elk Grove Village police said Sunday.

The burglary, discovered by a police patrol at 2 a.m. Saturday, occurred sometime since 11:30 p.m. Friday, police said. The burglars apparently broke an office window to gain entry.

BUT KELTER said Friday his group's understanding of the long-proposed move has always been that the groups would consolidate to form one stronger chamber.

"That has never been my understanding," Kelter said of the Schaumburg group's proposal. "That was never the thought on our part. We had always thought that neither one was simply going to join the other."

"We had always thought in terms of joining hands and joining forces to make for a better group," he said. "Neither intended to dominate the other."

Kelter said his group will renew discussions on the matter shortly after its new officers are installed at a luncheon Jan. 14. He added he would hope for a joint meeting before the end of the month.

THE SCHAUMBURG group, meanwhile, will soon schedule its annual meeting where new officers will be elected. Larson said Jan. 30 has been tentatively set as the date for the breakfast meeting to be held at Union Oil Company in Schaumburg.

The slate of officers includes Larson for president, Joe Lenzik of Colonial Chevrolet as vice president; William Leeson, president of the Suburban National Bank of Woodfield as treasurer, and Ray Harty of Ray's Heating and Plumbing.

Other board members slated include Arnold Stanger of Stanger Lithograph, John Mathias of Franklin-Weber Pontiac, Ken Wolmer of the Schaumburg Airport, Frank Randazzo of the Woodfield Racquet Club and Gene Marzelli of Interior Space Technologies, Inc.

Suburbs wary of Pikarsky as RTA chief

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

Pikarsky plans to meet this skepticism with a concentrated effort to improve mass transportation in the suburbs, he said two hours after his appointment was approved Friday.

The RTA board approved Pikarsky's nomination by a 6-to-2 vote when two suburban board members who earlier opposed him switched their votes. A salary has not been established, but it is expected to be $60,000 to $100,000 a year.

John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president who reluctantly backed the RTA referendum in March, said of the appointment, "I think it's absolutely imperative that they get off the dime and move ahead. I don't believe Pikarsky is an acceptable chairman in large part because of his very close association with Mayor Daley."

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong. If he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

Pikarsky pledges suburbs to get equal consideration

Now RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky is tackling his biggest obstacle — the suburbs — with promises of equal consideration with Chicago and development of a suburban service division in the RTA structure.

"While the City of Chicago is the largest governmental subdivision of this area, the entire suburban area is equally as important in the terms of the need to maintain, improve and expand public transportation as a necessary public service," he said.

"All capabilities of the RTA, including funding and revenues, must be utilized in accordance with this cardinal principle of treating the Chicago area as a whole, with full realization that the entire area is more important than any single part.

"We cannot permit any portion of the area to be favored at the expense of the others. We could not, for instance, adopt policies that would penalize suburban service to the benefit of transit service in Chicago," he said.

Pikarsky said one of his first tasks

may be to equalize fares on suburban bus and commuter railroad systems.

To ensure efficient bus service in the suburban areas, he said, he will establish the suburban service unit and propose that the director of the division be selected by the suburban members of the RTA board.

will be fulfilled," he said.

The committee, which opposed the RTA referendum, had said the CTA would get control of the RTA and that 78 per cent of the money would go to the CTA, although only 31 per cent of the income would come from Chicago residents.

A new amendment to the RTA law requires money raised by RTA taxes in a county to be spent in that county, but Skinner says that guarantee is insignificant. "All the guarantees are that the CTA will make out like a bandit," he said.

Temporary RTA chairman Joseph Tecton would not comment at length on why suburban board members D. Daniel Baldwin and Richard Newland swung to Pikarsky, but he said, "The voting is over. Government runs by the rule of the majority and I'm prepared to move on."

Schools

Heiken Puppets come to Parkview

River Trails Dist. 26

The Parkview School PTA will sponsor the Heiken Puppets in "An Angry Moon — Legends of Alaska" in two morning performances Tuesday at the school, 605 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The Cumberland School PTA will meet at 6 p.m. Thursday at the school, 700 Golf Rd., Des Plaines. The program will deal with special education courses offered at the school and will involve principal Robert Paulsen and special-education teachers.

The program includes discussion of how children are screened and recommended for classes; language development; the opportunity to advance to regular classes, and the typical classroom day. Refreshments will be served by third-and fourth-grade room mothers following the program.

High School Dist. 125

Registration for swimming classes for elementary and preschool children at Stevenson High School, Prairie View, will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday at the school.

The classes will be Jan. 10-March 22 and will cost $10 for 10 sessions. Classes will be offered at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. for kindergarten through eighth-grade students and at noon for preschool children.

Open swimming for the public will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. and will cost 50 cents.

A swimming class for men also will be held Tuesdays beginning Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8 p.m. The fee for the lessons is $10. Registration will be held the first night the class meets.

"The Entertainers," a ragtime band of Stevenson High School students, will perform during the intermission of the Margot Grimmer American Ballet Company's production at Barrington High School Friday.

The group also will present a show at North Park College Jan. 24 during a performance of the ballet company.

"The Entertainers" includes Kurt Schulenburg, Polly Paulson, Ron Wirth, Ray Cook, Brad Howell and Wendy Bude.

Notre Dame High School

The alumni association of Notre Dame High School, Niles, will host its first dinner-theater party Feb. 1 at the Country Club Theatre, Mount Prospect. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. followed by the play "Butterflies Are Free" at 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 per person and can be obtained from Paul Kanzer, 724-0091. Paid reservations are necessary and must be made by Wednesday, Jan. 15.

In general . . .

"What do young people think about the future?" is the theme of a nationwide contest sponsored by Encyclopedia Britannica Inc. and Scholastic Magazine Inc. for junior and senior high school students.

Winners will receive cash prizes and sets of the new "Britannica 3." In addition, teachers of winning students will receive sets of "The Annals of America," a 20-volume set describing the life and history of the United States from 1492.

Entries are to be based on one or more of the following area: matter and energy, the Earth, life on Earth, human life, human society, art, technology, religion, the history of mankind and the branches of knowledge.

Students attending Grades 7-12 in any public, private or parochial schools in the United States or Canada or of any U.S.-sponsored school abroad may submit an entry.

Entries may be written, drawn, photographed, tape-recorded or multimedia, and must be postmarked by Jan. 12.

Rules and entry forms are available by writing Futures Unlimited Awards, Scholastic Magazines, 800 Sylvan Ave., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632.

TOWERING EIGHT FEET above Patty and Tracy Wren stands the tallest snowman on the block. The 'Paul Bunyan' of Hoffman Estates is the creation of Patty, Tracy, their mother, Laurie and an aunt, Carol Rabaut, an Upland, Calif., visitor who hadn't seen snow since 1968.

California resident goes flaky over sight of snow

Carol Rabaut had waited six years to see it again, and when it came late Thursday, she made the most of it.

Miss Rabaut, a third-grade teacher in Upland, Calif., was visiting her sister, Laurie Wren and her family at 310 Winston Dr., Hoffman Estates, when the snow finally began to fall. For Miss Rabaut, who would be leaving Friday to go back to the West Coast, the winter wonderland came just in time.

And on Friday she, her sister and two nieces, Tracy, 8, and Patty, 10, went to work to mold it into a worthy remembrance — an eight-foot snowman.

"She's an art major," Mrs. Wren said of Miss Rabaut. "We started with just a giant snowman, but then she said 'let's carve him out.' I said 'you've got to be kidding,' but she insisted.

"So we started and we did. We carved out his legs and we made him," Mrs. Wren said. "He's standing there like a giant Paul Bunyan."

The snowman reached to the roof of the Wren home in the Winston Knolls subdivision before the quartet finished.

"This was the first good packing snow we've had since she's been here," Mrs. Wren said. "She was just thrilled. She hadn't seen snow in so long. She was even out shoveling at 11 p.m. Thursday."

Manager candidates to be reviewed

Applications from more than 15 persons seeking the new post of Schaumburg village manager will be reviewed at a closed session of the legal committee at 7:15 p.m. Monday at the Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

Members of the zoning board of appeals, plans and aesthetics commissions and the public are invited to attend an 8 p.m. open session of the committee for discussion of the present fence, peddlers and solicitors and garage sale ordinances, a village spokesman said Friday.

In closed session, legal committee members plan to select five top candidates for the $27,450 village manager post to be filled in May. Their recommendation is expected at the Feb. 11 village board meeting.

Village Administrator John Coste is the only announced candidate for the manager's post. Though legal committee members officially say he will receive the same consideration as other applicants, Coste is expected to get the job.

Community calendar

Today — Schaumburg Legal Committee, 8 p.m., Civic Center, Washington Room, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct., Schaumburg.

Hoffman Estates Village Board, 8 p.m., Municipal Building, 1200 N. Ganinan Dr., Hoffman Estates.

Correction

The Schaumburg Park District's Winter Frolle Festival will be Saturday, Jan. 11, weather permitting, at Campanelli Lake on Schaumburg Road just east of Schaumburg High School.

The date for the festival was incorrectly reported as Saturday, Jan. 4, in the Herald's Friday edition.

Events are to include speed skating, broom hockey, tugs-of-war, sled races, snow sculpture and others. Events will begin at 11:30 a.m. and run through 3:30 p.m.

There will be activities for all ages. In case of poor weather conditions, the festival will be Jan. 18.

The local scene

Ski trip Jan. 24

Reservations are being taken now for the Schaumburg Park District special weekend at Buchanan, Mich., Jan. 24-26.

Skiing will be at the Royal Valley Ski Resort, and trip participants will lodge at the Golden Eagle Motel in nearby Niles.

The fees include transportation, tows and lodging. The cost for adults is $39 and for children $21, but with equipment rental and lesson the price is $60 and $37, respectively.

Children under 10 may stay with their parents for no charge at the motel. A deposit of $10 is required at registration and the balance is due Jan. 10.

Interested residents may sign up at the Melneke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

Award dinner Feb. 15

Schaumburg Jayceettes will hold their fourth annual Outstanding Young Woman award dinner Feb. 15 at Lancer Steak House, 50 E. Algonquin Rd.

The award is presented to a Schaumburg woman, between 21 and 35 years of age, who has been active in the community. The 1974 award went to Mary Nagy, chairman of Schaumburg's community blood drive.

Nominations can be made by contacting Lynne Peterson, 109 Lela Ln., 529-2225, or Diana Wawrzyniak, 120 Grand Central Ln., 894-7031. Deadline for nominations is Jan. 20.

Pilots Assn. to meet for 2nd annual dinner

Schaumburg Pilots Assn. will hold its second annual holiday dinner party Jan. 10 at the Millionaires' Club, Lombard.

A cocktail hour is planned for 7 p.m. and dinner, consisting of a choice of prime rib of beef or New York sirloin, will follow at 8 p.m.

Cost is $13.50 per person. Reservations and a check must be sent to Dave McPherson, 94 E. Foser Ave., Bloomingdale, or Mel Rathbun, 52 W. Clara Ave., Roselle.

Membership in the pilots' association is open to pilots of aircraft based at Schaumburg Airport or Irving Park Road or others interested in promoting general aviation.

Welcome Wagon formed

A Welcome Wagon Club for new residents in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg will have its initiation meeting Jan. 15 at the Vogele Recreation Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates village president, will attend the 8 p.m. meeting.

Nancy Zimmerman, Welcome Wagon hostess, said the area has been represented by hostesses from the international organization for several years. A club providing new residents the opportunity to meet and get to know one another, however, has not been chartered before from the Welcome Wagon organization, she added.

Persons interested in attending the friendship coffee are encouraged just to come, she said. Other Welcome Wagon hostesses in the area are Donna Thompson, Hoffman Estates, and Betty Ledvin, Schaumburg.

Income up despite cut in skating hours

by MARILYN McDONALD

The Rolling Meadows Park District has increased admission and ice rental fees at the district's indoor ice rink while reducing public skating hours this year in order to meet rising costs.

"The rink is making money. Its programs are bringing in more than last year," Park Supt. Stephen Person said. Person said recreation fees and admission costs provide 42 per cent of the park district's income, and 62 per cent of that figure is brought in by the various ice programs.

However, public skating, once the reason the park district chose to build the sports complex, has steadily decreased since the rink opened. In an effort to consolidate what park officials call dwindling interest in public skating and to boost profits, hours have been trimmed by two-thirds.

THE RINK IS part of the $900,000 sports complex, approved by voters in 1968 and opened in January 1971. At first, daily attendance averaged between 400 and 500. At that time there were 38½ hours of public skating each week.

Last year, the rink was open 26 hours each week for public skating at a cost of 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

This year, there are only 8½ public skating hours, and all resident skaters pay $1 admission. The public skating is held only on weekends. Non-residents must pay $2 per session.

Hockey director Richard DeVoss said that fewer skating hours have resulted in increased attendance at each skating session. Last year, an average of 10 skaters came to each of the 12 sessions. Now, 38 skaters come to each of the four sessions. Still, DeVoss admits that public skating revenues are about $1,000 less than last year. The figures also show an average drop of about 100 skaters this year.

With fewer hours tied up in public skating, more time is taken up by local hockey teams and private parties. These bring in $60 an hour for prime time evening hours, and $30 for other hours. These rates are $3 more than last year's rental rates.

SPORTS COMPLEX director Rudy Nelson said that because of the increased rental time and rates, ice rental revenues have increased from $2,450.50 in November, 1973 to $4,900.50 in November 1974.

The most financially successful ice program, however, is league hockey. About 450 boys enrolled this year at a cost of $60 per resident up from last year when 310 boys were enrolled at $45 each. A healthy number of nonresident enrollments at $85 each has also boosted revenues. In November alone, the hockey program brought in $2,700 more than it brought in during November 1973.

The league hockey program "carries" less successful programs such as learn-to-skate, Nelson said. As of December, the learn-to-skate program had earned $3,888 last year while in the same period the year before, the program earned $0,218.

Nelson said that the dropping of summer skating classes this year is in part responsible for the drop in revenues.

Girl, 8, wins grand prize in contest

Laurie Ferraresi, 8, of 2105 Eastman St., Rolling Meadows, has won the grand prize in the Chicago area 7-Eleven "Save a Living Thing Program" coloring contest.

Laurie colored the entry form depicting a southern bald eagle and flock of whooping cranes, both considered to be endangered species by the National Wildlife Federation. The contest was designed to call attention to the need for saving endangered animal species.

For her winning entry, Laurie will receive a $100 savings bond, a commemorative plaque from 7-Eleven, membership in the National Wildlife Federation, and lunch with Larry Lujack, WLS disc jockey and co-sponsor of the contest.

Proposed for Arlington Park property

Area leaders back plan for stadium

by KURT BAER

Civic and community leaders generally have reacted positively to news that Madison Square Garden Corp. may plan a new football stadium for the Chicago Bears at Arlington Park Race Track.

"I would be very interested in listening to anything they have to say about it. I think it has some great possibilities. But I really want to take a good look at what they're talking about, particularly the financial feasibility," said Village Pres. Ralph H. Clarbour of Arlington Heights.

Alan Cohen, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., last week said the company is studying the economic feasibility of building a major new sports stadium at Arlington Park, which it owns. Cohen said he has talked about the site with Bears owner George Halas who has not ruled it out.

"I WOULD LIKE to see it happen, but I don't think it will," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. "I'll believe it when I see it. I don't think Mayor Daley will let the team out of Chicago."

Daley was reported to have ordered plans drawn for a new stadium on the Soldier Field site in Chicago, presumably for the Bears, but it is not known how this move would affect arena plans at Arlington Park.

Jones said he would rather see a stadium built at the track than the 5,000-unit high-rise apartment housing project that has been proposed for 190 acres.

Richard Goedke, president of the Westgate Civic Assn. that represents 1,000 Arlington Heights homeowners east of Wilke Road, also said a stadium probably would be more acceptable than the housing development.

"Let's face it, the land at the race track has to be developed one way or another. We're not opposed to development per se, but we are concerned about how it is done," Goedke said Friday.

Without having had the opportunity to discuss the idea with Westgate association members, Goedke said he "couldn't see how they'd oppose it too much. We'd certainly hate to see that residential development go in."

ROLLING MEADOWS officials also reacted with general favor to the stadium idea.

"It wouldn't have any more impact than the racing season, and maybe not as much. Racing goes on six days a week. If they start with night football, maybe that would have some effect," said City Mgr. James Watson.

Ald. Merrill Wuerch, 1st, said traffic and noise would be the two obvious impacts on the city. Ald. Thomas Waldron, 2nd, said the race track would be "an ideal place" for the Bears to play.

"I think it would be good for the area — lot better than those apartments. Traffic could be channeled right out so we'd hardly notice it," Waldron said.

ONE SOURCE OF opposition to the stadium plans, if they are ever drawn, may come from the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine north of the race track.

"I doubt very much that the subdivision would support the development of a

Suburbs wary of Pikarsky as RTA chief

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

Pikarsky plans to meet this skepticism with a concentrated effort to improve mass transportation in the suburbs, he said two hours after his appointment was approved Friday.

The RTA board approved Pikarsky's nomination by a 6-to-2 vote when two suburban board members who earlier opposed him switched their votes. A salary has not been established, but it is expected to be $80,000 to $100,000 a year.

John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president who reluctantly backed the RTA referendum in March, said of the appointment, "I think it's absolutely imperative that they get off the dime and move ahead. I don't believe Pikarsky is an acceptable chairman in large part because of his very close association with Mayor Daley."

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong. If he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

Pikarsky pledges suburbs to get equal consideration

New RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky is tackling his biggest obstacle — the suburbs — with promises of equal consideration with Chicago and development of a suburban service division in the RTA structure.

"While the City of Chicago is the largest governmental subdivision of this area, the entire suburban area is equally as important in the terms of the need to maintain, improve and expand public transportation as a necessary public service," he said.

"All capabilities of the RTA, including funding and revenues, must be utilized in accordance with this cardinal principle of treating the Chicago area as a whole, with full realization that the entire area is more important than any single part.

"We cannot permit any portion of the area to be favored at the expense of the others. We could not, for instance, adopt policies that would penalize suburban service to the benefit of transit service in Chicago," he said.

Pikarsky said one of his first tasks

will be to equalize fares on suburban bus and commuter railroad systems.

To ensure efficient bus service in the suburban areas, he said, he will establish the suburban service unit and propose that the director of the division be selected by the suburban members of the RTA board.

"I will be disappointed, I think he'll be fair and square. I'm not going to be unhappy at all, but Mr. Pikarsky will have to justify his existence."

WOODS SUMMARIZED the feeling of many suburban mayors and elected officials. "The suburbs can be pardoned for their skepticism," he said.

State Rep. Calvin Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, was outraged with the appointment. "I'm anxious to see if the rest of the kNOW RTA Committee predictions will be fulfilled," he said.

The committee, which opposed the RTA referendum, had said the CTA would get control of the RTA and that 78 per cent of the money would go to the CTA, although only 31 per cent of the income would come from Chicago residents.

A new amendment to the RTA law requires money raised by RTA taxes in a county to be spent in that county, but Skinner says that guarantee is insignificant. "All the guarantees are that the CTA will make out like a bandit," he said.

Temporary RTA chairman Joseph Tector would not comment at length on why suburban board members D. Daniel Baldwin and Richard Newland swung to Pikarsky, but he said, "The voting is over. Government runs by the rule of the majority and I'm prepared to move on."

Village cuts budget, weighs hiring freeze

Palatine village trustees cut another $3,000 from the 1974-75 budget Sunday and discussed a freeze on village hiring for the next four months.

The budgetary action was approved at a special committee-of-the-whole meeting of the village board called to review the proposed amended budget for this fiscal year.

An amended budget reflecting the additional cuts is expected to be presented to the board for adoption this month.

"THE LOWER spending level will give us a better cash balance picture at the end of the fiscal year (April 30) to deal with the uncertain economy and projected revenue reductions. We will go into next year in a better position," said Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig strongly objected to the proposed freeze on hiring. The board had suggested that hiring any more employees would require board approval even if the job is a replacement or has already been budgeted.

Harwig said he thought this action indicated a lack of confidence in him by the board. The trustees then agreed to delay any action on changing the hiring policy.

THE EXPENDITURES from the village's general fund were cut by about $35,000 out of a total of $2.55 million. The cuts included $5,800 from administration expenses, $5,500 from building and zoning, $800 from the health department, $3,800 from the fire department, $3,000 from the public works administration fund, $5,000 from the legal fund and $10,500 from the municipal fund.

The reductions were mainly in the area of overtime, contractual services, training, office equipment and supplies, printing, memberships and subscriptions.

An additional $35,000 in salaries for public works employees was moved from the general fund and will be made up from other funds.

"If next year is going to be a hold-the-line austerity budget, these are things we can do to establish that spirit," said Trustee Richard W. Fonte.

THE $2.55 MILLION amended budget presented to the board will be reduced further to reflect Sunday's additional cuts.

The revenue expected for this fiscal year is $2.23 million. A cash surplus of $24,000 started this fiscal year and the budget cuts will bring the budget into balance, and provide a surplus for the start of the next fiscal year, trustees said.

"You have taken the surplus and spent it. You actually ran a deficit budget," said Trustee Fred H. Zajone. He also argued that federal revenue-sharing funds should not be spent in the village's general fund but should be reserved for items the village could not normally afford.

Jones labeled Zajone's statements "irresponsible" and untrue in a heated exchange.

Cost of business licenses may go up

Palatine businessmen may pay more for their business licenses in 1975.

An increase in the cost of all business licenses in the village will be considered at a joint meeting of the administration, finance and legislation committees and health, safety and welfare committee at 7 p.m. today at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

Representatives of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce, Palatine Business and Industry Council and other businessmen have been invited to attend.

The business license fees have been under study for several months. The new fee schedule is expected to bring Palatine in line with area municipalities and generate an additional $90,000 for the village.

If adopted, the new fee schedule for business licenses would go into effect Feb. 1.

TWINKIE LOVERS gathered at Birchwood Park Friday for Palatine Park District's first Twinkie-eating contest. About 70 first through eighth graders cheered each other on during the separate age group competition, and

Ice on area lakes unsafe for skating

Palatine police are warning youngsters to stay off lakes that "look ice over but aren't."

Lt. Robert Centner said police have been "constantly called by residents" who see children playing on lakes in the Virginia Lake and Lake Louise subdivisions of Palatine when the water is barely frozen.

It takes one to two weeks of below-freezing temperatures to freeze a lake to "the point where it will be safe to skate and play on," Centner aid.

Lake Louise is about 20 feet deep at its deepest point, Virginia Lake is 80 feet at its deepest point, and Lake Irene, behind the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, is about 50 feet deep.

Police have "chased kids off the ice" so far this winter, "but all it takes is one thin piece of ice and one scared child, and something for worse could happen," Centner said.

Schools

River Trails Dist. 26

The Parkview School PTA will sponsor the Heiken Puppets in "An Angry Moon — Legends of Alaska" in two morning performances Tuesday at the school, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The Cumberland School PTA will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school, 700 Golf Rd., Des Plaines. The program will deal with special education courses offered at the school and will involve principal Robert Paulsen and special-education teachers.

The program includes discussion of how children are screened and recommended for classes; language development; the opportunity to advance to regular classes, and the typical classroom day. Refreshments will be served by third-and fourth-grade room mothers following the program.

High School Dist. 125

Registration for swimming classes for elementary and preschool children at Stevenson High School, Prairie View, will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday at the school.

The classes will be Jan. 18-March 22 and will cost $10 for 10 sessions. Classes will be offered at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. for kindergarten through eighth-grade students and at noon for preschool children.

Open swimming for the public will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. and will cost 50 cents.

A swimming class for men also will be held Tuesdays beginning Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8 p.m. The fee for the lessons is $10. Registration will be held the first night the class meets.

"The Entertainers," a ragtime band of Stevenson High School students, will perform during the intermission of the Margot Grimmer American Ballet Company's production at Barrington High School Friday.

The group also will present a show at North Park College Jan. 24 during a performance of the ballet company.

"The Entertainers" includes Kurt Schulenburg, Polly Paulson, Ron Wirth, Ray Cook, Brad Howell and Wendy Bade.

Notre Dame High School

The alumni association of Notre Dame High School, Niles, will host its first dinner-theater party Feb. 1 at the Country Club Theatre, Mount Prospect. Dinner will be served at 8:30 p.m. followed by the play "Butterflies are Free" at 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 per person and can be obtained from Paul Kanzer, 724-0091. Paid reservations are necessary and must be made by Wednesday, Jan. 15.

In general . . .

"What do young people think about the future?" is the theme of a nationwide contest sponsored by Encyclopedias Britannica Inc. and Scholastic Magazine Inc. for junior and senior high school students.

Winners will receive cash prizes and sets of the new "Britannica 3." In addition, teachers of winning students will receive sets of "The Annals of America," a 20-volume set describing the life and history of the United States from 1492.

Entries are to be based on one or more of the following areas: matter and energy, the Earth, life on Earth, human life, human society, art, technology, religion, the history of mankind and the branches of knowledge.

Students attending Grades 7-12 in any public, private or parochial schools in the United States or Canada or of any U.S.-sponsored school abroad may submit an entry.

Entries may be written, drawn, photographed, tape-recorded or multimedia, and must be postmarked by Jan. 12.

Rules and entry forms are available by writing Futures Unlimited Awards, Scholastic Magazines, 900 Sylvan Ave., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632.

2nd, said the race track would be "an ideal place" for the Bears to play.

"I think it would be good for the area — a lot better than those apartments. Traffic could be channeled right out so we'd hardly notice it," Waldron said.

ONE SOURCE OF opposition to the stadium plans, if they are ever drawn, may come from the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine north of the race track.

"I doubt very much that the subdivision would support the development of a sports complex at the race track. We have been opposed to all other development there just because of the effects it would have on our neighborhood," said Evaline Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Assn.

The association plans to discuss the possible stadium plan at its next meeting Jan. 14, she said.

Clarbour said a sports stadium could be "far more compatible use of the race track land than putting 15,000 people on it to live."

"At the time the race track was brought into the village that (annexation) agreement left them the option to do a number of things with the land. And the idea was that they would do a number of things," he said.

BUT THE ECONOMIC reality of stadium, especially if it were used solely by the Bears, is one of the biggest doubts about the plan, said Clarbour. At the same time if it were not for an established sports team like the Bears being involved, he said he would not be interested at all.

"A team like the Bears has a long-term business interest, and, as a business venture, is going to consider the possibility of success," he said.

As to the likelihood of Arlington Heights becoming involved in the financing of an Arlington Park stadium, Clarbour said, "I don't know of any of these facilities that have been built that don't have some public financing."

He said the village might consider backing a revenue bond issue for the stadium that would be paid off entirely by stadium income. But he discounted any general obligation bond issue for the project.

"If the thing flunked with general obligation bonds then the taxpayer is stuck. And I think the taxpayer is stuck enough without having to worry about football stadiums or baseball parks," he said.

Theodore Wattenberg, a member of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education, has announced his candidacy for the Mount Prospect Village Board.

Wattenberg, 66, of 1807 Tano Ln., said Friday he will not seek reelection to the board of education, but instead will seek a four-year term on the village board as an independent candidate. "I want to go to greener pastures," he said.

Village Trustee George B. Anderson, meanwhile, confirmed reports that he will seek reelection on the United Citizens Party slate. Anderson, 38, of 1005 Isabella St., announced Friday he will seek a second term on the village board.

He said he seriously considered seeking reelection as an independent, but opted to join the ticket because the candidates share common goals and because it will reduce the demand of campaigning.

"I look at myself as a progressive independent candidate and I believe over the past four years I have acted independently on all decisions," Anderson said. "If I run as a team member it should not in any way affect my independence as a candidate and a board member."

ANDERSON, AN engineer, said he is especially interested in seeing that flood control and traffic programs are completed according to plans. As chairman of the fire and police committee of the board, Anderson has been involved in local traffic improvements.

Other candidates on the UCP ticket include incumbent trustees Marie L. Cayor and O. T. Gustus, who will be seeking two-year terms after having been appointed to the board. Zoning board chairman Carolyn H. Krause and Edward G. Wells, both local attorneys, will join Anderson in seeking four-year terms.

Anderson said the UCP ticket was put together without the help of Mayor Robert D. Teichert. When asked if the ticket was basically "pro-Teichert," he said the mayor had not endorsed the slate although "I'd personally welcome his support."

Wattenberg said he decided about a week ago to seek a board seat as an independent. "I decided this about a week ago at the urging of many friends of mine," he said. "I also believe voters should have a choice of candidates, just like the housewives at the supermarket."

TRUSTEE RICHARD N. Hendricks is the only other candidate to announce that he will run for election as an independent in the April 15 village election.

Appointed to the school board in 1971, Wattenberg, an attorney, was elected to a three-year term in 1972. His term expires in April.

The candidate said he is "all for the poor but I'm not a socialist. That would mean I would have to make sure the budget for any socialistic ventures had been carefully tested," he said. "That would mean it would have to benefit the majority of the people. If my neighbors or the majority of the people are against it, I'm not going to be for it."

Wattenberg said he is opposed to construction of a new $3.2 million public library because the present facilities are adequate and said he believes the village should keep away from high-rise developments. "If people are willing to work hard for single-family homes, I think we should give them that opportunity," he said.

MOUNT PROSPECT'S downtown commission members took a stroll through the downtown area Saturday morning to study advantages and disadvantages of closing the streets to create two malls. Stopping along Busse Avenue are, from left, Harold Predovich, Eugene Friker, Robert Bennett, chairman, and Robert McBride.

by BETTY LEE

It was 8 a.m. Saturday and downtown Mount Prospect was beginning to stir. Cars lined up at the teller windows at the bank. A man was carrying a scrap of lumber to his car; another man walked into a barbershop. On another street, a woman wheeled a cart of groceries.

If Saturday mornings downtown best typify village life, members of the Mount Prospect Downtown Commission saw it. People seem to know each other. As one member observed, it's small-town living.

Commission members were on a walking tour Saturday, scrutinizing every bit of land bounded by Maple Street, Central Road and Northwest Highway. They pointed to empty buildings and empty lots, occasionally halting in the middle of the street, stopping traffic and confusing passersby.

They took the walk because they have the task of developing a plan to revitalize the downtown area.

"I'd like to emphasize that we would like to work with what we have," Comr. George March said.

WHAT THE VILLAGE has is bits and pieces and what might be feasible is to create two malls from the downtown wedge, said consultants Barton-Ashman Associates Inc., Chicago, one of two firms hired by the village to study the downtown area. And commission members were walking the streets to see what can or cannot be done.

Creating a mall in downtown Mount Prospect would be done by closing several streets to through traffic. The east side of Main Street would be a government-service mall and the west side a commercial-retail area.

The malls would not compete with regional shopping centers but could lure local shoppers because of the downtown's central location. If stores and services were more convenient and attractive, the downtown section can be a convenience shopping area, said the second firm hired by the village, Property Consultants Inc. in Northfield.

COMMISSION MEMBERS stopped at Elmhurst Road and Emerson, Wille and Pine streets, trying to visualize what the area would be like if the streets were closed. The flow of traffic would be a problem, said Robert Bennett, commission chairman. Parking would be another side of Main Street would be a government-service mall and the west side a commercial-retail area.

"We probably can get some face-lifting money generating to make these stores more attractive," Bennett added.

"It sure has a small-town appearance," Comr. Eugene Friker said. "They (residents) like that a lot. It's not to compete with Chicago architecture."

Mount Prospect police have charged a man stopped Saturday night for a traffic violation with the Dec. 11 holdup of a local gas station.

A bond hearing will be held today in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court for Robert M. Tanner, 20, of 211 N. Stevenson Ln., Mount Prospect. He has been held since Saturday night in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Police said Tanner was stopped about 7 p.m. Saturday near the intersection of Central Road and School Street when spotted by a policeman who knew Tanner's driver's license was suspended.

Tanner was charged with driving on a suspended license and possession of marijuana, police said. After questioning by police, he was charged with the gas station holdup.

Police said about $150 was taken Dec. 11 from an attendant at Marion's Texaco gas station, Algonquin Road and Dempster Street. A preliminary hearing for Tanner is scheduled for Wednesday in Mount Prospect court.

Two teen-agers arrested by Mount Prospect police are believed responsible for at least 13 burglaries in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights.

The teen-agers, a boy and girl both 14 years old, were arrested Friday afternoon at the Olde Neighborhood Sandwich Shop, Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue, by Mount Prospect Patrolman Thomas Benz after Sheriff's Police sent out a radio dispatch for two burglary suspects whose descriptions matched the arrested pair.

Police said the boy and girl were seen leaving a burglarized home at 6 Patricia Ln., Prospect Heights.

Three watches and a collector's coin were found on the boy when he was arrested, police said. These items were later identified as having been stolen between 1:15 and 3:45 p.m. Friday from the home of Diane DiCicco, 1512 Barberay Ln., Mount Prospect.

The DiCicco burglary was the 11th reported in the northeast section of Mount Prospect during a seven-day period that began Dec. 29. Taken was $160 and jewelry valued at $373. A 10th burglary, which occurred Thursday night at the Lydia Latowicz home, 1303 Santeet Ln., but in which nothing was taken, was reported Friday.

No information was available on the location of six Arlington Heights burglaries which police have linked to the two teen-agers.

Portions of the northeast section of Mount Prospect would be like if the streets were closed. The flow of traffic would be a problem, said Robert Bennett, commission chairman. Parking would be another side of Main Street would be a government-service mall and the west side a commercial-retail area.

The group walked through the one-way Busse Avenue section between Elmhurst Road and Wille Street. "Like the plans (by consultants) say, retail here makes sense," Bennett said.

Suburbs wary of Pikarsky as RTA chief

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

Pikarsky plans to meet this skepticism with a concentrated effort to improve mass transportation in the suburbs, he said two hours after his appointment was approved Friday.

The RTA board approved Pikarsky's nomination by a 6-to-2 vote when two suburban board members who earlier opposed him switched their votes. A salary has not been established, but it is expected to be $80,000 to $100,000 a year.

John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president who reluctantly backed the RTA referendum in March, said of the appointment, "I think it's absolutely imperative that they get off the dime and move ahead. I don't believe Pikarsky is an acceptable chairman in large part because of his very close association with Mayor Daley."

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong. If he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates objects more to the importance in the terms of the need to maintain, improve and expand public transportation as a necessary public service," he said.

"All capabilities of the RTA, including funding and revenues, must be utilized in accordance with this cardinal principal of treating the Chicago area as a whole, with full realization that the entire area is more important than any single part.

"We cannot permit any portion of the area to be favored at the expense of the others. We could not, for instance, adopt policies that would penalize suburban service to the benefit of transit service in Chicago," he said.

Pikarsky said one of his first tasks

will be to equalize fares on suburban bus and commuter railroad systems.

To ensure efficient bus service in the suburban areas, he said, he will establish the suburban service unit and propose that the director of the division be selected by the suburban members of the RTA board.

Pikarsky said he will be fair and square. I'm not going to be unhappy at all, but Mr. Pikarsky will have to justify his existence."

WOODS SUMMARIZED the feeling of many suburban mayors and elected officials. "The suburbs can be pardoned for their skepticism," he said.

State Rep. Calvin Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, was outraged with the appointment. "I'm anxious to see if the rest of the know RTA Committee predictions will be fulfilled," he said.

The committee, which opposed the RTA referendum, had said the CTA would get control of the RTA and that 78 per cent of the money would go to the CTA, although only 31 per cent of the income would come from Chicago residents.

A new amendment to the RTA law requires money raised by RTA taxes in a county to be spent in that county, but Skinner says that guarantee is insignificant. "All the guarantees are that the CTA will make out like a bandit," he said.

Temporary RTA chairman Joseph Tescos would not comment at length on why suburban board members D. Daniel Baldwin and Richard Newland swung to Pikarsky, but he said, "The voting is over. Government runs by the rule of the majority and I'm prepared to move on."

Area leaders back Arlington Park stadium plan

by KURT BAER

Civic and community leaders generally have reacted positively to news that Madison Square Garden Corp. may plan a new football stadium for the Chicago Bears at Arlington Park Race Track.

"I would be very interested in listening to anything they have to say about it. I think it has some great possibilities. But I really want to take a good look at what they're talking about, particularly the economic feasibility," said Village Pres. Ralph H. Clarbour of Arlington Heights.

Alon Cohen, president of Madison Square Garden Corp., last week said the company is studying the economic feasibility of building a major new sports stadium at Arlington Park, which it owns. Cohen said he has talked about the site with Bears owner George Halas who has not ruled it out.

"I WOULD LIKE to see it happen, but I don't think it will," said Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. "I'll believe it when I see it. I don't think Mayor Daley will let the team out of Chicago."

Daley was reported to have ordered plans drawn for a new stadium on the Soldier Field site in Chicago, presumably for the Bears, but it is not known how this move would affect arena plans at Arlington Park.

Jones said he would rather see a stadium built at the track than the 5,000-unit high-rise apartment housing project that has been proposed for 100 acres.

Richard Goedke, president of the Westgate Civic Assn. that represents 1,000 Arlington Heights homeowners east of Wilke Road, also said a stadium probably would be more acceptable than the housing development.

"Let's face it, the land at the race track has to be developed one way or another. We're not opposed to development per se, but we are concerned about how it is done," Goedke said Friday.

certainly hate to see that residential development go in."

ROLLING MEADOWS officials also reacted with general favor to the stadium idea.

"It wouldn't have any more impact than the racing season, and maybe not as much. Racing goes on six days a week. If they start with night football, maybe that would have some effect," said City Mgr. James Watson.

Ald Merrill Woerch, 1st, said traffic and noise would be the two obvious impacts on the city. Ald. Thomas Waldron, 2nd, said the race track would be "an ideal place" for the Bears to play.

"I think it would be good for the area — a lot better than those apartments. Traffic could be channeled right out so we'd hardly notice it," Waldron said.

ONE SOURCE OF opposition to the stadium plans, if they are ever drawn, may come from the Arlington Crest subdivision in Palatine north of the race track.

"I doubt very much that the subdivision would support the development of a sports complex at the race track. We have been opposed to all other development there just because of the effects it would have on our neighborhood," said Evaline Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Assn.

The association plans to discuss the possible stadium plan at its next meeting Jan. 14, she said.

Clarbour said a sports stadium could be "far more compatible use of the race track land than putting 15,000 people on it to live."

"At the time the race track was brought into the village that (annexation) agreement left them the option to do a number of things with the land. And the idea was that they would do a number of things," he said.

BUT THE ECONOMIC reality of a stadium, especially if it were used solely by the Bears, is one of the biggest doubts about the plan, said Clarbour. At the same time if it were not for an established sports team like the Bears being involved, he said he would not be interested at all.

"A team like the Bears has a long-term business interest, and, as a business venture, is going to consider the possibility of success," he said.

As to the likelihood of Arlington Heights becoming involved in the financing of an Arlington Park stadium, Clarbour said, "I don't know of any of these facilities that have been built that don't have some public financing."

He said the village might consider backing a revenue bond issue for the stadium that would be paid off entirely by stadium income. But he discounted any general obligation bond issue for the project.

"If the thing flunked with general obligation bonds then the taxpayer is stuck. And I think the taxpayer is stuck enough without having to worry about football stadiums or baseball parks," he said.

Parks plan to annex 140 more homes

The Arlington Heights Park District has notified owners of 140 homes that they will be the next group annexed to the park district in an effort to provide more funds for the financially troubled district.

Thomas Thornton, park district director, said the park board plans to annex the 140 homes and a considerable amount of vacant land generally along Rand Road, at a meeting at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge St., at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 14. Thornton said the park district has not received any objection from the residents involved "that would even be comparable to the objection by residents of the Lynnwood subdivision to their annexation last month," he said. The Lynnwood subdivision is in north Arlington Heights.

Park district officials admit their finances are running short and park programs and maintenance of park facilities have been cut. A special panel of local residents, who studied the park budget, has recommended a referendum to hike the tax rate of park district residents.

WITH THE ANNEXATION of new areas, the park district also will gain added tax money and a broader tax base. The average homeowner with a $10,000 assessed valuation annexed to the park district would pay an estimated $40 more in taxes.

The latest park district plan is to annex about 20 homes and vacant property in an area bounded on the west by Frontier Park, on the east by Ridge Street, on the south by Palatine Road, and on the north by Ladd Street.

Also scheduled for annexation are 20

Suburban officials are uneasy about the appointment of CTA chairman Milton Pikarsky as chairman of the Regional Transportation Authority.

"On the other hand, he has the unique opportunity to prove everyone wrong, if he can distinguish between the CTA and the RTA, all of us would wish him well," Woods said.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates objects more to the new RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky is tackling his biggest obstacle — the suburbs — with promises of equal consideration with Chicago and development of a suburban service division in the RTA structure.

"While the City of Chicago is the largest governmental subdivision of this area, the entire suburban area is equally

RTA law than to Pikarsky. "That law was badly written and is still badly written. It does not provide for checks and balances," she said.

"I still think it would be best to bring in someone brand new, with no political ties. There will be bitterness, and that may prevent the next thing we will need — a metropolitan water authority. We've probably taken a short-term look and peace at any cost," she said.

"I have nothing against Mr. Pikarsky, but who will take over the reins of the CTA? He never stood up to the unions and now they are crying for more. I don't see him having the backbone to pull it off. I don't think he's handled the CTA well enough to give him a bigger job," Mrs. Hayter said.

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel supported the RTA referendum and has worked closely with Chicago on water supply and mass transit issues. "I have always thought Milton had all the tools and all the abilities to run the job," he said. "If the fears of the other suburban mayors are realized, I will be disappointed. I think he'll be fair and square. I'm not going to be unhappy at all, but Mr. Pikarsky will have to justify his existence."

WOODS SUMMARIZED the feeling of many suburban mayors and elected officials. "The suburbs can be pardoned for their skepticism," he said.

Heiken Puppets come to Parkview

River Trails Dist. 26

The Parkview School PTA will sponsor the Heiken Puppets in "An Angry Moon — Legends of Alaska" in two morning performances Tuesday at the school, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Des Plaines Dist. 62

The Cumberland School PTA will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school, 700 Golf Rd., Des Plaines. The program will deal with special education courses offered at the school and will involve principal Robert Paulsen and special-education teachers.

The program includes discussion of how children are screened and recommended for classes; language development; the opportunity to advance to regular classes, and the typical classroom day. Refreshments will be served by third-and fourth-grade room mothers following the program.

High School Dist. 125

Registration for swimming classes for elementary and preschool children at Stevenson High School, Prairie View, will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday at the school.

The classes will be Jan. 18-March 22 and will cost $10 for 10 sessions. Classes will be offered at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. for kindergarten through eighth-grade students and at noon for preschool children.

Open swimming for the public will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. and will cost 50 cents.

A swimming class for men also will be held Tuesdays beginning Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8 p.m. The fee for the lessons is $10. Registration will be held the first night the class meets.

"The Entertainers," a ragtime band of Stevenson High School students, will perform during the intermission of the Margot Grinner American Ballet Company's production at Burlington High School Friday.

The group also will present a show at North Park College Jan. 24 during a performance of the ballet company.

"The Entertainers" includes Kurt Schulenburg, Polly Paulson, Ron Wirth, Ray Cook, Brad Howell and Wendy Bade.

Notre Dame High School

The alumni association of Notre Dame High School, Niles, will host its first dinner-theater party Feb. 1 at the Country Club Theatre, Mount Prospect. Dinner will be served at 8:30 p.m. followed by the play "Butterflies are Free" at 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $12.50 per person and can be obtained from Paul Kanzer, 724-9091. Paid reservations are necessary and must be made by Wednesday, Jan. 15.

In general . . .

"What do young people think about the future?" is the theme of a nationwide contest sponsored by Encyclopedia Britannica Inc. and Scholastic Magazine Inc. for junior and senior high school students.

Winners will receive cash prizes and sets of the new "Britannica 3." In addition, teachers of winning students will receive sets of "The Annals of America," a 20-volume set describing the life and history of the United States from 1492.

Entries are to be based on one or more of the following areas: matter and energy, the Earth, life on Earth, human life, human society, art, technology, religion, the history of mankind and the branches of knowledge.

Students attending Grades 7-12 in any public, private or parochial schools in the United States or Canada or of any U.S.-sponsored school abroad may submit an entry.

Entries may be written, drawn, photographed, tape-recorded or multimedia, and must be postmarked by Jan. 12.

Rules and entry forms are available by writing Futures Unlimited Awards, Scholastic Magazines, 900 Sylvan Ave., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632.

Only four seats available

Bowes 6th to enter library race

Janet Bowes is the sixth candidate for the four open seats on the Arlington Heights Memorial Library board in the April 1 library election.

Mrs. Bowes, 54, of 516 W. Eastman St., is a teacher in Park Ridge. She and her husband, William, have lived in Arlington Heights for five years.

"I'm very impressed with the library facilities and very interested in their expansion program. It's good for people who like a community to get involved," she said.

MRS. BOWES said she is particularly impressed with the library's audiovisual offerings, legal reference and general reference services. "I'd like to see them keep up the good work they're doing. It's the best library I've ever seen."

Mrs. Bowes said that she felt her educational experience would be an asset to the library board.

Previously announced candidates are Ridgely Jackson, 615 S. Belmont Ave., an elementary school teacher at Arlington Heights' Olive School, and William Conk, 1506 W. Concord Dr., an employee of Marshall Field and Co., Chicago.

INCUMBENTS Richard Frisbie, Thomas Dooley and Robert Melroy will seek to retain their seats in the election. Frisbie, 631 N. Dunton Ave., is president of the board and has served as a board member for eight years. Dooley, 431 S. Patton Dr., has been a board member since October 1973 when he was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Phillip Jones who moved from the area. Melroy, 1506 S. Harvard Ave., is now in his sixth year on the board and is its secretary.

Anyone interested in a library board position must file a petition bearing 50 signatures with the Arlington Heights village clerk before Jan. 27.

Parks seek to annex 140 more homes

homes and vacant land in an area bounded on the east by Rand Road, on the south by Thomas Street, and on the north and west by Dorothy Avenue. A 20-acre vacant parcel, west of Hersey High School, will also be included in the annexation.

ABOUT 28 HOMES in an unincorporated area of the Arlington Knolls subdivision, west of Arlington Heights Road, also will be annexed, as will 25 homes in the nearby subdivision of Caroline Highlands.

Corrado's Restaurant, 310 W. Rand Rd. in Arlington Heights, and seven homes in the subdivision of Arlington Acres, south of Hintz Road on Arlington Heights Road also will be brought into the district. Fifteen homes and vacant property in an area bounded by Vista Road on the west, Hintz Road on the south, and the Northgate subdivision on the east also will be annexed.

Thornton said that these annexations will not financially help the park district until 1976 when the increased assessed valuation will generate more tax money for the district. He did not have specific figures.

Thornton said the park district plans to annex additional unincorporated properties along Rand Road "within the next few months."

"I DON'T FEEL that the opposition that the Lynnwood residents have is really valid since the park district is abiding by state law," Thornton said.

"I don't really expect much objection from residents involved with the proposed annexations since many of these residents already use our facilities and participate in our programs."

More than 50 Lynnwood residents are objecting to their annexation into the park district because the park district has claimed, under the state law, that Chicago Avenue is a state highway.

They have raised $1,000 to retain a lawyer who will file a suit against the park district this month. The suit will contend that the park district misinterpreted and misused a state law which allows park districts to annex unincorporated properties that are bounded by state roads, railroads, bodies of water or other park district properties.

Lynnwood residents have received the opinion of State Rep. Ronald K. Hoffman, R-Westchester, who sponsored the state law and believes the park district is clearly deviating from the original intent of the bill.

Board reviews town hall plans

The Arlington Heights Village Board will review plans tonight for a new town hall for Wheeling Township at 1620 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Township officials are asking the village to rezone the site from single family to office use. The rezoning is opposed by several homeowners who live near the proposed site just north of Maude Avenue and by Village Planner Joe Kessler.

Kessler says the rezoning conflicts with the village's Arlington Heights Road study which recommended that office zoning not be extended any further south along north Arlington Heights Road.

On Dec. 11, the Arlington Heights Plan
